MONEY RATES EXPECTED TO CONTINUE LOW

New York Taken as National Forerunner

BONDS SHOULD RISE Investors Probably Will Make Attempt to Get More for Money

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, (CPA)—Inasmuch as close and friendly relations exist nowadays between the federal reserve bank of New York and the federal reserve board in Washington, the action of the former in reducing the discount rate to 2 per cent may be taken as the forerunner of a national policy of low rediscount rates.

Out of an abundance of experience and long familiarity with business cycles, Secretary Mellon said just after the October, 1929 crash that one of the most important factors in the recuperation of the country would be low money rates. Not very much attention was paid at the time to an announcement made by the federal reserve board's governor, Roy Young, who in the early part of 1930 pointed to the gradually reducing money rates as a sign of the cooperation that the federal reserve system believed the money market was justified in getting from the federal reserve.

Through the ups and downs of unfavorable business developments and fluctuations in the stock market little head has been paid throughout the year to the low money rates—in fact there have been indications that many bankers believed the low rates were temporary.

Stabilization Seen.
The announcement by the federal bank of New York of a 2 per cent rediscount rate, the lowest of any central banking system in the world, means that money will be stabilized on a lower level for many months to come.

With the talk of the importance of stabilizing commodity prices, the business world has not lost sight of the fact that a stabilization of money rates is also very vital. In recent weeks the banks have been hesitant about buying bonds either because of the desire to keep liquid or else because of a fear that if money rates went up bond prices would fall off. The 2 per cent rediscount rate makes it possible for member banks to borrow at the federal reserve and thus provide themselves with all the necessary funds for commercial purposes. It cannot but have the effect of relieving the tension that was beginning to be apparent in some quarters.

A bank, of course, is limited in the kinds of loans it can rediscount at the federal reserve but it is always under the necessity of being induced more or less to borrow from the federal reserve when the rediscount rate is low and attractive.

When a bank can lend at 5 1/2 or 6 per cent on prime commercial paper and can in effect transfer the loan to the federal reserve at a cost of only 2 per cent the tendency will be to increase borrowing from the federal reserve and thus leave the capital and undivided profits of a bank as well as a certain proportion of its other resources to make loans which are not eligible for the rediscount.

Action of Confidence
But outside of the effect on the banking world the reduction in the discount rate will be regarded nationally as an expression of confidence in the future of American

GOLD RUSH SURVIVOR IS DEAD IN RAINE

Racine, (CP)—William Tanking, 91, one of this city's few remaining "gold rush" survivors, died at his home on Christmas day. He came to this country from Germany when 15-years old. Tanking was one of the first to join the search for gold in California and returned here 63 years ago after ten years of prospecting on the Pacific coast.

2 Robbers Break Out Of Prison

Lincoln, Neb. (AP)—State Sheriff W. C. Condit learned today that Harold Domisse, 28, and Forest Cook, 23, who had been sentenced to 20 years in prison for the robbery of the First National bank at Hay Springs, Nebr., escaped from jail at Alliance, Nebr., yesterday.

Condit was informed that Domisse and Cook broke into the sheriff's office at the jail on the third floor of the courthouse at Alliance and stole the officer's keys. They then escaped from the building.

The two men pleaded guilty to charges of bank robbery last Saturday and district Judge E. L. Myer sentenced each to 20 years in prison.

The Hay Springs bank was robbed last Sept. 18 of $14,000 by five men. Douglas Dewitt, 20, another member of the gang, is serving a 14 year sentence in the state penitentiary for the robbery. He was arrested in Kansas and pleaded guilty.

Domisse was arrested at Carleton, N. M., Oct. 14 and returned to Nebraska. Cook was apprehended in Indianapolis recently. Other members of the gang have been caught.

Domisse, who until recently was held in the state penitentiary here for safekeeping, Condit said, was taken to Alliance to enter a plea of guilty. The man, the state sheriff said, agreed to plead guilty if the officers would permit him to remain in the Alliance jail during the holidays so that his wife could visit him.

Before the Hay Springs robbery, Domisse escaped from jail at Sioux City, Condit said that twice while confined in the jail at Rushville, Nebraska, the man had attempted to escape and that one time he was brought to Lincoln for confinement in the prison.

MILWAUKEE DENTIST KILLED BY BANDIT

Defies Robber's Command to Open Safe and is Shot
Four Times

Milwaukee (CP)—Christmas was the saddest day in the lives of Mr. Helen Koehn and her daughter, Marian, 12. Their husband and father, William O. Koehn, dentist, lay dead, killed by four bullets from the gun of a bandit who attempted to rob an almost empty safe in his office.

Police today had no trace of the man who posed as a patient of the dentist, nor of his companion who waited in an ante room and fled with the killer.

Because no money or narcotics were in the safe, police detectives today had some doubt that robbery was the motive for the slaying. Mrs. Koehn on the verge of collapse, was unable, however, to tell them of any enemies who might have plotted her husband's death.

Dr. Koehn's appointment book showed no engagements for Wednesday, indicating that the two men who appeared at his office shortly before noon were his first patients. The one complaining of a toothache was taken immediately into the office.

During brief periods of consciousness before he died Wednesday night, Dr. Koehn told detectives the man sat in the dental chair for at least 10 minutes while he worked at filling a tooth. As he turned, the man drew a revolver, Koehn said, and demanded money, or that the safe be opened. Koehn defied him. The bandit seized him and tied his hands together with a short cord. Then he threw him to the floor.

On the repeated command that he open the safe, the dentist attempted to out-bluff the bandit. He called loudly for help. The robber fired four shots into his chest and abdomen, and fled.

BLAMES DEPRESSION TO LACK OF CONFIDENCE

Elmira, N. Y. (AP)—E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley railroad, in an interview published today by the Star Gazette, expressed the opinion that lack of confidence was the major cause of stagnant business conditions in the country.

"The present business situation is so full of complexities I feel it is impossible to predict what is going to happen in the near future," Mr. Loomis was quoted, "particularly as there would seem to be no excuse for existing conditions."

"When one stops to consider the magnitude of this country," he said, "and the economic condition of its people, it is difficult to understand why business has declined to present levels. The racketeers are everywhere these days, and may have something to do with it. Certainly, the major trouble, in my opinion, is lack of confidence."

THREE THOUGHT DROWNED WHEN BOAT CAPSIZES

Boats in Bay Off
California

Sausalito, Cal. (AP)—Three men were believed to have drowned here last night when a launch capsized, throwing its thirteen occupants into the cold waters of Richardson's bay. Ten were rescued by a ferry's life boats.

The party was on its way from Sausalito to the yacht Janidore, owned by Isadore Zellerbach, San Francisco capitalist. Sam Bowman, a member of the Janidore's crew, was the first. All members of the party lived in Sausalito.

Authorities said the launch was overcrowded.

Search was continued for the missing, Ernest Rogers, a stewardess, A. Van Scoy, a cook, and a man known only as "Bill." Bowman was among the rescued.

Captain Charles J. Olson of the ferry Tamaulipas said his craft was just entering the slip when he heard cries for help. The life boats were put out quickly, but they had to cover more than half a mile to reach the overturned launch.

A strong tide carried the 13 men farther away from the ferry and they had to struggle hard to keep afloat until the rescuers arrived.

With life belts and lines, the rescuers pulled the ten out of the water in short order, but were unable to find any trace of the other three.

SHERMAN'S STAFF MAN SUCCUMBS AT MONROE

Monroe, (CP)—Capt. Nathaniel B. Treat, 91, who was believed to be the last surviving officer of General Sherman's staff during the famous Civil War march to the sea, died at his home here today after a short illness.

Capt. Treat, a native of Maine, served with Company B, Thirty-first Wisconsin Infantry, during the Civil War and was attached to General Sherman's staff during the memorable march.

He formerly served as state assemblyman from Greenock, was a member of the state board of control for five years, and served intermittently on the county board and city council. He was a member of the Masonic order for 62 years.

MILK TRUCK DRIVER IS INJURED IN COLLISION

Racine (CP)—Thrown through the windshield of his milk truck when it struck the rear of an interurban car, Harry Gosmire, 24, was in a hospital here today with a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries. The accident occurred, witnesses said, when the interurban car stopped suddenly.

Justice Aude, 54, who was driving an automobile that collided with a downtown street car, was fined $15 and had his state and city drivers' licenses revoked when brought into municipal court today.

ASKS AID FOR SMALL PRODUCERS OF OIL

Representatives of Purchasing and Pipe Line Companies Study Problems

Tulsa, Okla. (AP)—Representatives of major crude oil purchasing and pipe line companies meeting here today were asked by E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute, to aid the owners of more than 40,000 small oil wells in Kansas and Oklahoma who will lose their market outlet Jan. 1.

The companies were urged by Reeser to strain a point in order to buy the affected production, approximately 40,000 barrels daily. Meeting behind closed doors the oil men began consideration of methods to meet the situation created by the announcement of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, which has been the chief purchaser, that it would cease taking oil from the wells after Jan. 1. The producers were not invited to the session.

Interested oil men predicted that purchasers of oil in the Oklahoma fields would be reduced slightly if the buying companies arranged to take the small producers' oil.

"To permit these thousands of old wells in settled fields to be shut down and their crude oil yield abandoned by salt water, never again to be recovered, would constitute an appalling economic loss," Reeser said.

"These old producers always have been considered the 'backbone' of the oil producing industry and their output will some day be needed again. In order to hold their steady, untiring production, they must be allowed to produce a certain amount of oil daily. To shut them down would mean ruin to millions of dollars worth of oil properties owned by 15,000 individual oil men and companies."

Lindbergh Recalls New Developments In Aviation

BY FOSTER HAILEY
New York (AP)—Aviation has come a long way since a young fellow from Missouri took off from Roosevelt Field four years ago next May and flew to Paris, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh believes.

The world's best known flyer talked today of aviation as it was five years ago and as it is now; of low wings and high wings; of engines and speed and radio—topics that are the very breath of life to him.

He said this:
"We have had more progress in the development of aircraft in the last five years than could have been foreseen at that time."

In 1925 a good cruising speed was 90 miles an hour. Today we have planes of the same class with cruising speeds as high as 140 miles an hour. The air mail De Havillands

Hold Youth For Attempt At Extortion

Kansas City, (CP)—Charles L. Duncan, 23, was sentenced to two and a half years in the Missouri penitentiary by Judge Ralph S. Lathrop today on a plea of guilty to a charge of attempting to extort $25,000 from R. A. Long, wealthy lumberman.

Kansas City, (CP)—A youth who police say attempted to extort $25,000 from R. A. Long, wealthy lumberman, was held today, trapped by two misspelled words.

Col. Charles Edwards, chairman of the crime prevention bureau of the chamber of commerce, and Detective Lieutenant E. L. Nelson said last night Charles Leonard Duncan, 23, had confessed, he threatened death to the millionaire head of the Long-Bell Lumber company in two notes.

In a handwriting test, they said the youth misspelled street and curbing, peculiarities of the message to Long directing disposition of the $25,000.

They quoted his sentence: "I saw a drunken man lying in the street by the curb." Duncan confessed, they said, when confronted by the identical spelling.

Long gave the letters, postmarked Dec. 17 and Dec. 22 to Colonel Edwards as he received them and declined a special guard.

The youth, unemployed since April, was arrested Wednesday at a boulevard intersection where he had directed Long to toss the money.

Colonel Edwards, his face muffled in his overcoat collar and a rifle beneath the laprobe on his knees, rode by the intersection at the specified time Wednesday afternoon and threw out a decoy package.

Five patrol cars closed in on the area. Duncan started from the shadow of a colonnade toward the package, police said, and then observing a patrol squad, moved away. He protested his innocence 20 hours.

The prisoner's widowed mother, Mrs. Nola E. Duncan, wept last night when informed of her son's confession. The youth, she said, was an epileptic.

"He's a good boy," she said, "but he's sick."

MRS. GOULD DIES AT VIRGINIA RESIDENCE

Lynchburg, Va. (AP)—Mrs. Katherine Clemons Gould, estranged wife of Howard Gould, is dead. She was 56 years old.

She died Wednesday after an illness of several months at Blue Gap farm, near here, where she had lived for 15 years. She and her husband had been separated since 1907.

Before her marriage in 1898, Mrs. Gould was an actress, known on the stage as Viola Katherine Clemons. She also was the author of a novel and contributed to periodicals.

In 1909 Mrs. Gould obtained a legal separation after a trial in which she was exonerated of serious counter charges. She was awarded $32,000 a year.

During her residence here she was active in philanthropic work.

PASTOR CONTINUES
APPEAR IN CHURCH

Milwaukee (CP)—While firemen fought a stubborn fire in the basement of the Jerusalem Evangelical church yesterday, the Rev. Walter Gieschen held 100 Christmas worshippers in their seats with his sermon on the nativity.

At smoke seeped from the choir loft, the minister asked the congregation to remain seated, saying there would be plenty of time to leave the auditorium if the fire was found serious. Meanwhile deacons quietly fought the blaze until the fire department arrived.

Firemen entered a rear door with one hose line and chemicals and fought 20 minutes before extinguishing the blaze. It started in refuse from the previous evening's Christmas party.

6 SMALL BANKS CLOSE DOORS IN SOUTH AND EAST

Business of Several Institutions Placed in Hands of Examiners

Tupelo, Miss. (AP)—The Peoples Bank and Trust company here and two branches at Nettleton and Rienzi, Mississippi, failed to open today. Directors called a meeting to consider plans for reorganization.

The bank was capitalized at $250,000. The last statement of the main bank showed a surplus of about $75,000 and deposits of approximately $1,700,000. The branches were smaller. Continued withdrawals and inability of the bank to obtain further credit forced the suspension.

Topeka, (CP)—Closing of three small banks in southeastern Kansas with deposits aggregating $271,000 was announced today by H. W. Koeneke, state bank commissioner.

He attributed the closing to last summer's drought and inability of the institutions to realize on their farm paper.

The banks are all in Allen county. They are: The Midland State bank, Moran, and the State bank of Elmore, Elmore.

Gary, Ind. (CP)—The People's State bank of Gary, was placed in the hands of the state banking department today. Heavy withdrawals over a period of four months was blamed by directors for the closing.

The bank, capitalized at $30,000, had $355,697 in deposits at the closing of business Wednesday.

Richmond, Va. (CP)—M. E. Brantow, state commissioner of insurance and banking, announced today that the State Bank of Pamplin had suspended business pending a meeting of its depositors tomorrow.

NEGRO ARRAIGNED IN MURDER OF TEACHER

Maryville, Mo. (AP)—Raymond Gunn, 39-year-old negro ex-convict, was arraigned secretly here today on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the death of Volma Colter, young rural school teacher. The prisoner was rushed back to jail at Kansas City for safe keeping.

Gunn, who officers say has confessed beating the girl to death in her rural school room Dec. 16, was brought into court before dawn. He waived preliminary hearing and his case was set for trial next month.

The negro was in the city only 20 minutes.

Ernest Kolberg Taken to Hospital After Accident with Automobile

Ernest Kolberg, 34, a former resident of Appleton, now living at Cecil, is in a critical condition in St. Elizabeth hospital with a fractured skull and several broken ribs, the result of an automobile accident on Tuesday. The injured man was returned to a Shawano hospital to Appleton Christmas night.

Because of a defective steering gear Mr. Kolberg lost control of his car and fell down a high embankment.

LAY POSTOFFICE PLANS BEFORE U. S. OFFICIAL

A report on activities of the special chamber of commerce committee seeking to have the new postoffice building constructed of stone instead of brick, has been sent to F. A. Heath, assistant secretary of the United States Treasury department. It is expected that the delegation of representative Appleton men will meet with Mr. Heath and other officials of the department in the near future to discuss plans for the new postoffice.

BANK ROBBERY SUSPECT AWAITS QUESTIONING

Milwaukee (CP)—James Kane, a suspect in the robbery here a month ago of the Layton Park State bank, was to be questioned today by Inspector John Bauschek and detectives. He was brought from Minneapolis after losing an extradition fight. Authorities declare Kane was identified by bank employees as one of six or eight men who participated in the robbery.

CHARGE 2 MEN STOLE
NASH EMPLOYEES' CARDS

Kenosha (AP)—Two men from the line awaiting $10 Christmas bonuses from C. W. Nash, automobile manufacturer, were in jail today, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and theft of time cards from the employees' time clock cards. They are Francisco Cerda, 34, and Manuel Rosendez, 23.

JUDGE JOHN LYLE

Judge Lyle Enters Race For Mayor

Chicago (CP)—A new candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, Judge John H. Lyle, militant foe of gangsters, was in the race today with a platform in which he promised to break up what he termed alliances between "crime and politics."

Judge Lyle, who as a jurist on the municipal court bench has gained widespread publicity by his treatment of gangsters, will oppose Mayor William Hale Thompson, Charles V. Barrett, chairman of the county board of tax review, and any other candidates who may enter the contest before the February primary is held. Thompson and Barrett already are in the race.

The announcement from Judge Lyle was made without awaiting the decision of various political factions which have been siding with candidate on whom they could unite in opposition to Mayor Thompson.

Neither did his statement indicate whether he would seek the support of these groups. Among political leaders with whom Thompson has broken is Bernard W. Snow, chairman of the Republican Cook-co committee.

Referring to Chicago gangsters and their bands of followers, Judge Lyle said in his statement that it was "ridiculous to assume that all these officers (Cook-co) cannot suppress and almost totally annihilate them."

Asserting he would give Chicago an efficient police department, the judge called attention to "such hoodlums as Capone and his underworld political criminal allies," and declared that "with a club in one hand and a gun in the other, officers should run them out of every public building in this city."

Anton J. Cernak, protégé of the late George J. Brennan, is the only Democrat who has announced himself for that party's nomination.

FARM LABORER HELD IN ANTIGO SLAYING

Sheriff Says Man Has Confessed to Killing John Murphy Last Monday

Antigo (CP)—First degree murder warrants were issued today against Rose Nickelson, and her son, Lawrence, sister and nephew of John Murphy 65, Deerbrook farmer, who was shot to death from ambush Monday near his home.

The warrants were issued against the confessed slayer, pleading guilty before Judge A. N. Whiting and was bound over to circuit court for trial.

Cockerman was taken from his bed by Sheriff Ford and deputies last night at a farm near Kent, Wis., 25 miles northeast of here. He had worked as a farmhand in this vicinity for the last 14 years after arriving from his home in Kentucky.

Murphy was found dead of shotgun wounds in the neck and shoulders two days after he conferred with W. E. Finnegan, deputy state fire marshal, regarding an incendiary fire which destroyed haystacks and pulpwood on his farm. Neighbors found the body face downward in the snow, and footprints indicated, Sheriff Ford said, the slayer fired from behind a tree at close range.

District Attorney James R. Durfee awaited the arrival of the state fire marshal to obtain his testimony at an inquest into the murder. Several other suspects were questioned by county authorities and formal charges were expected to be lodged after the inquest.

SLOT MACHINES NABBED IN RAIDS AT MADISON

Madison (CP)—Two squads of five men raided slot machines in Christmas eve raids on seven Daneco establishments, district attorney Fred Riser said today. Four of the places visited were in Madison.

10 LOSE LIVES IN 2 ACCIDENTS AT CROSSINGS

Four Members of One Family, Six of Another Family Fatally Hurt

INQUESTS ARE ORDERED

Two Pedestrians Die of Injuries Received on Kenosha Highways

By The Associated Press

Fourteen Wisconsin residents were killed in Christmas automobile accidents. Ten of them lost their lives in two collisions of automobiles with trains.

Four members of the Edward Roberts family were killed or fatally injured when their car was struck by a train Wednesday noon after they left their farm home 16 miles from Chippewa Falls to attend a Christmas reunion at the home of Roberts' father. Mrs. Roberts and her daughter, Barbara, 3, were killed instantly. Eileen, 7, and Eleanor, 5, died at a Chippewa Falls hospital yesterday. There was slight hope for Roberts' recovery.

Coroner Henry Larson photographed the accident scene yesterday and planned an inquest.

Coroner L. T. Schmidt ordered an inquest next Tuesday into the deaths of six members of one family in a car-train crash near Lomira, Dodge-co, Christmas Eve. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schultz, their son, Harry, and his three children, Esther, Raymond, and Anita were killed.

Going To Church

Harry Schultz was driving the family to a nearby church where the children were to participate in a Christmas program when the car was struck by a south-bound Soo Line passenger train. Mrs. Harry Schultz had been riding with her son, Edwin, who was ill.

All the bodies will be buried Sunday, with a joint funeral service.

In similar but separate accidents Thursday, Alex Olson, 47, and Julius Ritsman, 37, were killed as they walked along roads near Kenosha. They were both struck by passing cars, whose drivers said they were blinded by the lights of other machines.

Harvey Cavanaugh, 20, bank messenger, was killed near Oshkosh yesterday, when he was riding the coupe on which he was riding the running board, and a pole, as the car skidded. He had chosen to ride outside to make room for five companions crowded in the small car as they returned from a Christmas eve celebration. Rudolph Langner, driving, was held for today's inquest. The assistant district attorney ordered it after he learned the boys had been drinking.

Albert Janke, 58, a pedestrian, was killed at Wausau when she was pinned against a tree as two automobiles collided at a street intersection. Mrs. E. A. Witterling, Wausau, driver of one of the cars, was in a Wausau hospital with serious injuries.

Liquor Kills Five
New York (CP)—Five persons were dead today because they drank poison liquor on Christmas.

In their homes, on the streets, in subway stations and on piers they dropped yesterday and were taken to hospitals for treatment that failed.

Five more deaths were being investigated in the same connection and 45 persons were being doctored for acute alcoholism.

Dr. Charles Norris, medical examiner, said it was the lightest Yuletide toll in three years. Last year 33 cases were treated although there were no official fatalities. In 1929, there were two deaths and 33 instances of illness.

The dead were John Cochrane, 32; Patrick A. Green, 42; Andrew Reicher, 34; and two unidentified men. Among the mortuaries under scrutiny was that of Mrs. Lena Gorman, 55, whose body was found in a vacant lot on West 11th-st.

Die In Flames

Whiting, Ind. (CP)—Seven men died, four of them in sleep, as flames trapped them on the second floor of a rooming house yesterday.

The dead: Joseph Lucie, 49; John Lucie, 34; Max Stepih, 65; Joseph Bebec, 45; Victor Mechevec, 53; Thomas Kusevich, 55, and Nick Flemick, 40, all day laborers in steel plants. Firemen rescued Flemick from his bed, badly burned, and unconscious. They resuscitated him but he died last night.

A carelessly dropped match or cigarette was blamed by firemen.

COLUMBIA NETWORK TO BROADCAST GRID GAME

Chicago (CP)—Radio football fans will have only one game to tune in on tomorrow—the annual east-west clash at San Francisco. A play by play report of the classic will be broadcast over the Columbia network, starting at 4 p. m., central standard time. Chicago stations from which the game may be heard will be WBBM, WMAQ and WJJD.

Norris Invited To Sever His Connections With Republican Party

LEADERSHIP OF THIRD PARTY IS OFFERED TO HIM

Invitation Extended to Senator by Independent Political League

Washington, D. C.—Senator Norris said today he did not "suppose any body seriously thinks I will lead a third party movement."

The Nebraska Republican Independent, however, reserved until later in the day detailed comment on the letter received from John Dewey of the League for Independent Political Action, suggesting that he leave Republican ranks and form a third political party.

Dr. Dewey's proposal followed Norris' differences with Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, and the latter's efforts to head him out of the party.

New York.—(P)—Senator George W. Norris had an invitation today from John Dewey, chairman of the League for Independent Political Action, to bolt the Republicans and lead a third political party.

In a letter to the senator from Nebraska, Dewey, formerly professor of philosophy at Columbia university, told him he was not a true Republican as charged by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, and that the time was ripe for his leadership of a new political group.

"In sight of your recent experience with leaders of the Republican party," Dr. Dewey wrote, "I urge that you sever forever your connections with that political machine and form with those of us in the League and other groups a new party to which you can give your full allegiance."

The Republican party stands for "rugged" individualism, Dr. Dewey wrote, whereas Senator Norris favors social planning and social control.

"These are antagonistic philosophies," he said. The Republican party is a house divided against itself. You cannot put new wine into old bottles and we shall never be able to put this new philosophy of government into either of the old parties."

Republicans and Democrats are all alike, said the writer, and millions of progressives are so disgusted with them that a new organization could elect a president by 1940. "Many outstanding men and women in this country are every day walking of life," he wrote. "Recognize the need and will support such an alignment. State governors, federal judges, congressmen and United States senators, now working within the old parties, have expressed their conviction to us that a new party must come."

The league was organized by Dewey and 100 other liberals in September, 1929.

GINSENG GROWERS FORM COOPERATIVE

Headquarters of Farmers' Organization to be Established at Wausau

Madison.—(P)—The market value of ginseng, the mysterious root of no domestic value but which finds ready sale in India and China, will be protected in Wisconsin by a cooperative with headquarters at Wausau, the state department of agriculture and markets announced here today.

The new cooperative is expected to have a backing of $1,000,000 in order to handle Wisconsin's annual crop of more than 100,000 pounds, the department said. C. N. Pulley, in charge of bonded warehouse inspection for the department, said that arrangements have been made with the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago for a loan of about $750,000 on the 1930 crop.

"Ginseng has become known in this country as a mystery crop because American druggists find little or no use for the product," the department of agriculture said. "Practically every pound of Wisconsin's ginseng is shipped to China and India to be used by native doctors and physicians. It is said that the Chinese use the root for the rejuvenation of old men."

Establishment of a cooperative became necessary because of the low price offered growers by New York commission merchants, the department said. For several years growers have been paid eight dollars per pound although the product has obtained a market value of $27 a pound in Shanghai. This year the growers were offered only $3.75 to $4 a pound, according to Mr. Pulley. Wausau growers will this week obtain a warehouse under the supervision of the department of agriculture and markets. According to E. L. Luther, in charge of farmer's institutes in Wisconsin, the state produces about one half of the domestic crop. The five year purchase and sale contract form used by the northern Wisconsin tobacco pool will be used by the ginseng growers, the department said.

MRS. SINCLAIR LEWIS UNDERGOES OPERATION

Berlin.—(P)—Mrs. Sinclair Lewis today underwent a successful operation for appendicitis at the Mommien clinic, and this afternoon was reported resting comfortably. Prof. Huotner, who performed the operation, said she would have recovered completely within a fortnight.

Mr. Lewis, who recently came here with his wife from Stockholm, where he received the Nobel prize in literature, said Mrs. Lewis was taken suddenly ill early this morning and that the operation was performed in the nick of time.

Polish Dictator Retains Grip Over Country, But Opposition Is Growing

BY MILTON BRONNER

London.—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, dictator of Poland, has just demonstrated to his country that when it comes to being a political boss he is a genius. In manipulating elections and delivering the goods he could give the Tammany machine of New York City and the Vire machine of Philadelphia cards and spades and beat them. He has also shown that he is something unique in the line of dictators in this Europe that has been made unsafe for democracy.

Mussolini's merry men castorled their way to victory. Kink Alexander in Yugoslavia and the late General Rivera in Spain dictated by the will of the army, incidentally dispensing with such troublesome things as parliaments.

Old Pilsudski just naturally loves a parliament—if it votes his way. He likes to have a parliament which acts like a jumping-jack—jumps when he pulls the strings.

Trouble In Parliament

And that has been the trouble in Poland for the past four years. The Polish parliament would not jump. So "Pili" rigged himself up a nice new election in which his workers held him up as a national hero, while Polish legionnaires playfully clubbed the Ukrainians in eastern Poland and so frightened the Germans that they stayed away from the polls. The result is a jumping-jack parliament in which the dictator will have his majority.

When he marched into Warsaw four years ago last May with his beloved troops and upset the existing apple-cart, Pilsudski had just exactly six supporters in the Sejm. He stood this just as long as he could and then in 1927 he dissolved the Sejm and sent its members home. He allowed another election in 1928 and this time he had 130 supporters out of 444. The parties of both the extreme right and left opposed him and the result was a deadlock. Only trivial bills could be passed. Any other dictator would have dissolved this Sejm, too, and forgotten to hold another election. Instead, Pilsudski cursed parliaments, but kept grimly on trying to get the Sejm to see reason. At last he sent it home and prepared for another election.

This time the old man was "mad" all the way through. He was going to have a parliament of his own and he spoke the Polish nation to get it. One of the first things he did was temporarily to arrest some of the leaders of the opposition, notably M. Koranyi, the up-and-down king of Polish-Silesia and the man who more than anybody else got that slice of land for Poland from Germany. The Germans in Silesia and the Polish corridor were covered by methods peculiarly Polish. In Eastern Galicia it is openly charged and the League of Nations Committee is to investigate. The Polish soldiers committed vile excesses against the national minorities.

Obtained A Majority

Anyway Pilsudski got 247 seats out of the 444. He thus has a cellar majority and can now pass his laws—legally. But he has not obtained the two-thirds needed to revise the constitution. But this he may obtain by securing the assent of some of the minorities. He also obtained a safe majority in the following week's election for the Polish Senate, getting 76 seats out of the 111.

But even dictators have their troubles and among Pilsudski's are Polish-Silesia and its local hero, M. Koranyi. Pilsudski found that he could jail Koranyi's body, but he could not jail his soul. Koranyi's newspaper "Polonia" came out just the same. Under the caption "The Battle Goes On," Koranyi wrote that Pilsudski had lost influence everywhere in Poland where the people were of a higher intellectual level. Pilsudski gained his majority from the "dark east" where dark deeds are done. One only had to look at a map of Poland to see that the majority of the test citizenry of Poland were against the dictator. Everything in Poland that had real worth had pronounced itself against him.

Then Polish-Silesia answered. In the elections the Silesian Diet, which the Dictator greatly wanted to control, he only got 19 seats out of 43.

And his troubles are only beginning. The Germans of Germany are rushing to the rescue of their oppressed brethren in Poland. They already have the Mixed Commission examining into alleged cases of cruel outrages perpetrated upon Germans of Poland. They are going to bring the matter before the League of Nations.

The Great Roman Catholic organization "Germania," which for years has been the mouthpiece of the powerful Central party, of which Chancellor Bruening is a member, asks if Warsaw does not realize the danger if the S. O. S. of a dying German minority suddenly rang out across the frontier. It says the danger is great that Poland, because it will renounce nothing, will finally lose everything. The Socialist organ "Vorwarts" speaks in no less menacing tones about the mistreatment of the German minority in Poland.

High School Student STILL CRITICALLY ILL

Ben Hensel, son of Mrs. Mary Hensel, 921 E. Eldorado-st., Appleton high school student who is in St. Elizabeth hospital with general infection of the blood stream, still is in a critical condition, according to the attending physician. The youth became seriously ill after an infection in his throat spread to the sinuses and then entered the blood stream. He has been seriously ill for over a month.

Marshal Pilsudski, the "strong man" of Poland, believes in having a Parliament that will obey his wishes. Some of the methods which he has employed in securing such a body of law makers have aroused widespread opposition to his regime.

Year Brings Despair And Joy To League Supporters

Geneva.—(P)—The year 1930 has brought to League of Nations supporters many heartaches and some substantial reasons for rejoicing.

The end of the year, observers at Geneva generally agree, finds the international situation more troubled than at any time since the Locarno treaty was signed. Yet indications are not lacking that these 12 months embody a record of progress for the ideal of peaceful international cooperation.

Unhappy factors, both political and economic, are easy to find. The naval deadlock between France and

FIVE DAY WEEK IS SEEN BY ROBINSON

Arkansas Senator Believes Shorter Schedule May be Necessary

Little Rock, Ark.—(P)—The industries of the United States, says Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, may find it necessary to adopt a five day week to restore the equilibrium between the labor supply and the demand for laborers.

The democratic senate leader, in a statement made upon his return home for the holiday recess of congress, observed that "unemployment seems to be increasing rather than diminishing" and the substitution of machinery for hand labor is revolutionizing working conditions and throwing millions out of employment."

He said "manifestly, it is difficult" for the five day week to be brought about during an economic crisis like the present" and that it, like the proposed establishment of reserves for unemployment, is of permanent rather than temporary character.

"Many circumstances," said the senator, "indicate that mere temporary measures will be insufficient. Although, of course, they first must be considered."

He added that the $116,000,000 appropriated by congress for speeding up public works "appears inadequate."

"There are some signs of general business improvement, but the recovery cannot be quickly made," Robinson said. "Meantime every agency both public and private must cooperate wholeheartedly to minimize the distress."

WISCONSIN WEATHER

Cloudy to partly cloudy tonight and Saturday; no decided change in temperature.

GENERAL WEATHER

Snow flurries occurred throughout various sections of the upper Mississippi valley and extremely heavy rainfall occurred over the southern Mississippi valley and the Gulf region during the last 24 hours. Galveston, Texas, reported 1.3 inches of rainfall and Memphis, Tenn., 1.26 inches. A low pressure area prevails over eastern Canada and another one lies over central Canada. These have caused above normal temperatures from the central states eastward to the Atlantic coast, maximum temperatures above freezing occurring northward over the upper Mississippi valley and the lake region. Generally fair weather prevails over the Rocky Mountains and Pacific coast. Cloudy and slightly colder is expected in this section tonight, followed by mostly fair weather Saturday.

Italy has kindled ill-feeling among the peoples of these neighbor states. German and Polish relations are now exceedingly delicate. Growth of Hitlerism in Germany has aroused sharp concern in France and other countries which regard integrity of the peace treaties as the essential basis of European peace.

Above all and under all other distressing conditions is the general economic depression which gives rise in many parts of the world to hard feelings.

The league's efforts during 1930 to improve international commercial relations by tariff reductions met disappointment. Many league authorities believe that trade barriers constitute the greatest present menace to world harmony and they call "economic disarmament" the most urgent task of the league.

While acknowledging the blackness of this side of the picture, friends of the league insist that the sun does break through here and there.

Two forward strides have been taken in the program of disarmament; through the London naval conference and in the work of the preparatory commission at Geneva. It is marred by many defects, but it provides a working basis for the general disarmament conference and permits the consideration of a definite date for the world congress on arms limitation.

New vigor was injected into the permanent court of international justice during 1930, according to optimistic observers. The principle of compulsory arbitration gained strength through adherence by many states to the "optional clause" of the court statute and the "general act" for pacific settlement of disputes.

COMMITTEE TO MEET ON MILK COOPERATIVE

Members of a special committee appointed at a meeting of farmers here on Wednesday, Dec. 17, will meet at the courthouse Saturday, Jan. 3, to study plans, purposes and contracts of the Pure Milk Products Cooperative association. About 200 farmers from this district attended the meeting last Wednesday and after hearing the cooperative discussed appointed a committee which is to make further investigations and report at another future mass meeting. The meeting next Wednesday was arranged by Gus Sell, county agent, and it will be attended by R. P. Ames, an official of the cooperative and W. L. Witte, a marketing expert with the state department of agriculture.

SOUTHERN TOURIST TRAVEL THIS YEAR TO BE NEAR NORMAL

Such, at Least, Is Conclusion Made by Automobile Association

Washington, D. C.—Preliminary surveys made by the American Automobile Association indicates that travel into Florida and the southeast during the present winter will be up to normal this year despite existing economic conditions.

The A. A. A. statement was made after questioning motor clubs throughout the United States. The highlights on this survey are:

1. Indications are that winter visitors to Florida will spend approximately $150,000,000. While this amount will not be up to the high mark of 1924-25 ($250,000,000), it will be equal to normal years in the past.

2. Approximately 700,000 motorists, traveling in 235,000 automobiles, will be in the flow of southbound travel.

Business Not So Bad

3. Illinois, Michigan, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania, from which Florida draws most of its winter visitors, have not suffered as much as others from the downward trend in business.

4. The year's motoring army will encounter better road conditions. The southeastern states through which this travel must pass, spent about $170,000,000 for road-building and maintenance during 1930. South Carolina and Georgia particularly speeded-up highway construction.

5. Within the past decade there has been a steady increase in the number of people with incomes sufficiently large to afford winter vacations to the south.

The estimate as to the number of motorists expected to travel to Florida this winter is supported by actual checks made last winter.

"Inspection lines in connection with the fruit fly quarantine," says the A. A. A., "made possible an accurate count of the number of cars with out-of-state licenses entering Florida between November, 1929, and May, 1930. There were 225,000 such automobiles. With the quarantine out of the way there is every reason to believe there will be a greater number entering the state during the present winter."

Clubs Are Optimistic

Citing some of the reports from its larger affiliations, the A. A. A. says:

"The manager of the Travel Bureau of the Automobile Club of Philadelphia, estimates that at least 15,000 people will go to Florida from this city."

"He continues: 'From past experiences we find that these folks motor to Florida year after year regardless of conditions. It is also my belief that the present business depression will not deter many of them from making this winter tour.'"

"The Detroit Automobile Club asserts: 'At present we are running about 17 calls per day, which is an increase of approximately eight calls per day over this time last year. If these figures are any criterion, we should have a busier—or at least as busy—a year on tourist inquiries to Florida as we have had in the past.'"

"The Cleveland Automobile Club says: 'The number of inquiries for road information to southern resorts this year leads us to believe there will be a slight increase over last year.'"

"The Cincinnati Automobile Club advises: 'Our estimate of the number of people who left Cincinnati during the winter months last season was between 18,000 and 20,000. A study of conditions this year leads us to believe that this number will not be decreased.'"

"The New York Automobile Club estimates that approximately 35,000 New Yorkers will be represented in the flow of winter travel to Florida."

"The Chicago Motor Club reports: 'From October 15 to November 15, 1929, the touring bureau of the main office routed 223 people to Florida. This year for the same period we routed 243 people to Florida.'"

LEAD FIGHT TO LEGALIZE BEER

BETTER AUTOMOBILES AT LOWER PRICES ON MARKET

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

Science Editor, NEA Service

Detroit—Better automobiles at lower prices is the outstanding development in Detroit today.

The main reason behind this pleasing news is the introduction of machinery and apparatus that combine to produce modern cars in greater numbers than ever before and yet in a far more improved manner. Not only automatic tools and equipment, but easier means of checking construction details to a finer degree have become regular routine practices.

One great plant so co-ordinates and times all operations that its production has been planned almost to the second. The entire control of this factory is done by electricity, by means of daily planning and scheduling and by constant contact with all departments through the electric teletype system.

In another factory, a new and larger automobile is made possible at a comparatively low price through such innovations as a huge machine that will work on several similar units at the same time, an electrical device that speeds up testing of the crankshaft, and other electrical and physical measuring devices that guide parts checkers to a finer extent than they were able to attain heretofore.

Detroit—Better automobiles at lower prices is the outstanding development in Detroit today.

The main reason behind this pleasing news is the introduction of machinery and apparatus that combine to produce modern cars in greater numbers than ever before and yet in a far more improved manner. Not only automatic tools and equipment, but easier means of checking construction details to a finer degree have become regular routine practices.

One great plant so co-ordinates and times all operations that its production has been planned almost to the second. The entire control of this factory is done by electricity, by means of daily planning and scheduling and by constant contact with all departments through the electric teletype system.

In another factory, a new and larger automobile is made possible at a comparatively low price through such innovations as a huge machine that will work on several similar units at the same time, an electrical device that speeds up testing of the crankshaft, and other electrical and physical measuring devices that guide parts checkers to a finer extent than they were able to attain heretofore.

processes in automotive construction. The usual allowance in measurement is only one-thousandth of an inch, either above or below the specified dimensions. If a part be more beyond this allowance either way it is discarded.

In addition, parts such as pistons, wrist pins and connecting rods are "paired" by weighing, so that all those entering a specific engine are sure to be balanced.

Dissatisfied with present precision gauges, electrical engineers have designed a device that will measure parts to within one one-hundred-thousandth of an inch. It works with a needle on a visible scale.

As a result, the checker is able to detect inaccuracies much more quickly and definitely. The device is now being used in the factories of one of the largest auto manufacturers, and soon will come into use in other plants.

In another auto factory a radio apparatus is used to detect noises in bearings. The bearings are run in a special machine. Close by is a loudspeaker that has been converted into a microphone, and this is connected through a radio amplifier to an ammeter which measures the intensity of the sound conveyed to it electrically.

The sound registered on this ammeter tells how true the bearings are and so enables the checker to discard bearings that, otherwise, he might have approved.

Speed and Accuracy

These are only a small proportion of the devices and methods used to foster greater accuracy in construction, improve the products and the same time hasten the manufacture of automobiles.

In every plant the conveyor system prevails, if only in the last stages of assembly. But in some of the larger factories producing the more popular cars, there is practically no manual movement of parts from the very beginning of manufacture. This relieves the worker from heavy handling operations and enables him to devote his attention entirely to production.

Materials that go into the modern automobiles have been greatly improved in content and structure, yet with little or no additional cost. This is why manufacturers have continued to reduce prices, or at least have not raised their already lowered prices, and yet have been able to furnish much better cars.

Competition in this industry has been in the form of improved time, labor and money saving machinery, rather than in direct price cutting without regard to cost of operation. The new devices, besides enabling the production of better automobiles, have produced greater economies in operation that have been passed down to the consumers.

"A more propitious time for payment of this debt to veterans could not be conceived," he contended. "Every state, city and hamlet would feel the stimulating effects."

Other plans for paying off the veterans' certificates have been proposed by Secretary Mellon and treasury officials, partly on the contention that the relief afforded would be of a temporary nature.

"I doubt," he said, "if the treasury ever again will be able to secure money at such a low rate for the discharge of this obligation."

The Texan advanced his belief that no more than 60 per cent of the veterans would present their certificates at this time, but he argued the release of the sum represented by this proportion would contribute materially to restore "the economic balance."

CANADA'S ANSWER SOON MAY DECIDE WATERWAY'S FATE

Argument in U. S. Is That Project Would Reduce Shipping Costs

BY FRANK I. WELLER

Washington.—(P)—The return of Prime Minister Bennett to Ottawa has been the signal for renewed negotiations for an international treaty on development of the St. Lawrence deep waterway.

Canada's answer to a note from Col. Hanford McNider, United States minister to Ottawa, announcing this government ready to proceed at the earliest possible date, was promised by Bennett shortly before he left to attend the British imperial economic conference in London.

Would Cut Shipping Costs

On this side of the boundary one of the big arguments in favor of the project, which would connect the Great Lakes with the Atlantic ocean, has been its use in reducing the transportation costs of wheat exports.

During the crop year 1928-29 there were exported from Montreal 107,875,025 bushels of American and Canadian wheat. Two-thirds of the grain to move through the St. Lawrence, however, is expected to be Canadian.

With Chairman Legge of the farm board declaring the United States to be out of the wheat export business, and Secretary Hyde and the White House joining in the contention that American production be limited to American consumption, it is possible the waterway would lose its first value to American farmers.

Power Sites In Prospect

Use of the waterway for industrial commerce, however, retains its status and there still remains perhaps the greatest driving factor behind the entire project—development of power sites.

Both sides of the line are interested in the electric energy to be generated. The international territory involved is that part of the river separating the state of New York and the province of Ontario. Improvements in the channel in the wholly Canadian territory north of New York, and the construction of the Welland canal between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie are estimated to have cost Canada $261,538,491.

There is some Canadian sentiment for the United States to even the cost before Canada spends any more on the project.

President Hoover, last year, said he believed the entire project could be constructed for less than $200,000,000, divided between the two governments.

HI-Y CLUB PREPARED 265 GIFT PACKAGES

Appleton high school HI-Y club delivered about 265 gift packages to children, in needy Appleton families Wednesday, according to C. C. Bailey boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A. who directed the activity. The gifts were articles given the boys by Appleton people. The articles were repaired and made usable and then wrapped and distributed under direction of the Salvation Army and the Home Aid bureau.

MRS. PFITZNER SINGS AT KIWANIS MEETING

Appleton Kiwanians were entertained by Mrs. Walter Pfitzner, vocal soloist, at their regular weekly meeting Wednesday noon. Mrs. Pfitzner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Saecker and is visiting in Appleton over the holidays.

To those who gave you gifts of money this Christmas you owe this compliment — to purchase with that money some token truly worthy of the sentiment that prompted the giving. Pitz & Treiber's is the logical place to select an article of which you will be proud to say to the giver of money, "This is your gift to me."

SEEK 10 CENT FARE FOR RIDE ON "LOOP" BUS

Ole Lundquist Asks Railroad Commission to Author- ize Increase

Application for an increase in bus rates from 6 cents to 10 cents has been made by the Fox River Bus company to the railroad commission. The hearing will be held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at city hall.

With 10 cent rates in Milwaukee and Green Bay, and eight cent rates in Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, Ole Lundquist, who has operated the Fox River bus company for the last seven years, feels that the commission should grant a 10 cent rate in Appleton. The average rate throughout the United States and Canada is seven and two-tenths cents. The only other city in Wisconsin which has a five-cent rate is Wausau says Mr. Lundquist.

The Fox River company operates two loop busses, one on College-ave, Bennett-st, Wisconsin-ave, and Lawrence-st, and a second on Spencer-st, Outagamie-st, Mason-st, Wisconsin-ave and Oneida-st.

A hearing on the application of the Wheeler Transportation company for a certificate to operate motor vehicles for the carriage of freight between Oshkosh, Appleton, and Kimberly will be held before the railroad commission at city hall Tuesday. The meeting will open at 1:30.

"Y" PLANS OPEN HOUSE PROGRAM

Concert in Lobby, Swimming and Gymnasium Exhibi- tions Will Feature

The annual open house program New Years day at the Y. M. C. A. has been completed, according to George F. Werner, general secretary.

Activities will begin at 2:30 Thursday afternoon with a concert by Tom Temple's orchestra in the lobby. The concert will continue until 4 o'clock. A gymnasium program also has been planned. It will open at 2:30 with the Friendly Indians putting on an apparatus and game drill. The Pioneers then will put on an apparatus and vaulting drill which will be followed by a basketball game between the Delta chapter of Hi-Y and the Sophomore Triangle club.

Richard and Robert Neller then will feature in an advanced apparatus drill and their exhibition will be followed by another basketball game, the United Cigars playing the Y. M. C. A. Beavers.

There also will be exhibitions in the swimming pool, the first to be stunt swimming and scheduled for 3 o'clock. At 3:30 there will be a swimming meet, the competitors being Appleton boys and men.

Three hundred poor children and their parents attended the Christmas party given by the city poor department at Warner Brothers theatre Christmas morning. The regular feature, "Going Wild" was presented.

A Christmas party was held at the City Home Christmas eve for the residents of the home. W. L. Lyons, poor commissioner, gave a talk after the Christmas dinner, and gifts were exchanged around the Christmas tree.

BAILEY TO SPEAK AT JUNIOR CHAMBER MEET

C. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A. will be the principal speaker at the bimonthly dinner meeting of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Continental at 6:30 next Monday evening. The program is being arranged by Dave Bender, chairman of the committee in charge.

DANCING STUDENTS TO ENTERTAIN AT THEATRE

A group of dancers of the Vesper Chamberlin Dancing Academy will entertain at the Fox theatre on New Year's day. Those who will take part are the Misses Beverly Breinig, Janet Cameron, Mildred Alferi, Helen McCoy, Dorothy Sellers, and June Dhein.

NO FIRES, ARRESTS OVER CHRISTMAS DAY

A quiet and peaceful Christmas was enjoyed by members of Appleton's police and fire departments. Not an arrest was made Christmas eve or Christmas day. Firemen were given an opportunity to spend the evening and Christmas day without disturbance as no fire calls were received.

THIEVES STEAL CAR FROM PARKING LOT

Elroy Bank President Arraigned On Charge Of Embezzlement

BOUND OVER TO NEXT TERM OF CIRCUIT COURT

John Hart Charged With Embezzling $3,000 Of Institution's Funds

Maunston—(P)—Arraigned in county court before Judge Robert P. Clark on charges of embezzling $3,005 from the State Bank of Elroy, of which he was president John Hart, waived examination today and was bound over to the circuit court.

Bond of $5,000 was furnished by Dr. Clarence A. Vogel and H. W. Neuman, of Elroy.

Hart will appear before Judge E. W. Crosby of Neilsville at the next term of circuit court.

The state banking commissioner took over affairs of the bank last week. Hart was arrested at Eau Claire, Christmas eve, where he had gone to spend the holidays with a married daughter.

Grew Up With Bank
Hart, 64 years old, grew up with the bank of which he became president. He was connected with it for more than 25 years. He was prominent in city and county government for years and held, at different times, the offices of mayor, president and member of the county board, and president and member of the school board.

The directors turned the bank over to the state banking commission a week ago. Investigators for the state body immediately set to work checking up its affairs. The warrant charging the $3,015 embezzlement was signed by Edward McCoy and Albert Schultz, two of the directors. Their action was at the suggestion of the investigators, who still are checking the books.

Before leaving Elroy a week ago to visit with his married daughter at Maunston, Hart told the bank examiners where he was going and where he could be found.

CHARGE SEYMOUR MAN WITH BEING DISORDERLY

George Burnett, 45, Seymour, was released from the county jail Wednesday afternoon after he pleaded guilty in municipal court before Judge Fred V. Heinenmann of disorderly conduct. Burnett was originally arrested on a charge of attempted burglary and has spent 13 days in the county jail awaiting trial on that charge. Judge Heinenmann released the man after the burglary charge was dropped and he pleaded guilty of being disorderly. The judge said he thought Burnett had served enough time. It was charged Burnett tried to enter the soft drink parlor of Michael Meyer.

TWO CARS DAMAGED IN SHERWOOD CRASHES

Two cars were slightly damaged in two accidents at Sherwood Tuesday morning. At 11:10, Sherwood cheese-maker, backing out of a garage, collided with a car driven by Al Schumacher, Stockbridge. A wheel was broken off the Thiel car. An hour later Roman Fees lost the bumper off his car when it collided with a car said to be driven by a Kaukauna man.

"J. Ham Lewis" Says He Is Still Dapper At 67

Chicago—(P)—When the Chesterfield of President Wilson's wartime Democratic family, James Hamilton Lewis, goes back to the United States senate he will find few of that clan still wearing the toga. Those who served under his whip in the glamorous war years will find him grayer now. Some of the sting is gone from his tongue, and some of the fire from his leadership.

But he is the same stylish dresser, the same courteous individual, and his voice still carries the silver, honeyed tones of old. Lewis, the Democrat, in defeating Ruth Hanna McCormick, the Republican, for the Illinois senate seat closed a cycle of campaigns and personages begun 12 years ago. Then he was defeated by Medill McCormick, husband of his opponent this year.

Charles S. Deneen eliminated McCormick in the primary six years later, and last spring Mrs. McCormick won over Deneen.

A roll call of those whom Lewis knew when he was the Democratic whip—political friends and foes—would bring but few responses. "Woodrow Wilson—Oscar W. Underwood—Henry Cabot Lodge—Warren G. Harding, Boies Penrose—Robert M. La Follette—Charles Culberson—Loke Smith"—all are dead.

James Reed has retired to private life. So has Harry New, and Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Albert Fall and Irvin Lenroot.

There are a few of the old-timers to greet "J. Ham," however—James Watson, George Norris, Key Pittman, Lee Overman, Charles McNary.

Lewis, a Virginian by birth, now is 67 years old. He grew up in Georgia—motherless, as she died at his birth. His father was a Confederate veteran. James Hamilton went about as far west as possible—Washington—to seek his fortunes. He worked

FORMER APPLETON MAN WAS CO-PILOT WITH LINDBERGH

R. S. LeRoy, a former Appleton boy, was one of the co-pilots with Colonel Charles E. Lindbergh in his recent trail blazing flight across the United States when he inaugurated the new transcontinental air mail route. Pilot LeRoy aided Colonel Lindbergh in guiding the plane from Pittsburgh to Columbus, Ohio. The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph printed several pictures of the airport, plane and Colonel Lindbergh and in one of the pictures Pilot LeRoy posed with the colonel.

WEATHER IS IDEAL ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Weatherman Favors Appleton, Vicinity—Mild Temperatures Recorded

Appleton and vicinity was favored with ideal weather on Christmas Day. Mild temperatures were recorded and there was little precipitation. A few flakes of snow fell Thursday afternoon.

Local residents were not burdened this year with the tedious task of keeping their sidewalks cleaned by wrestling snow with shovels, or trudging through drifts on foot or with automobiles.

Highways throughout the state were clear of snow, enabling motorists to travel with ease. Many Appleton people were able to drive to Milwaukee and other cities from 50 to 100 miles away without being handicapped with slippery or snow covered roads.

On Christmas morning the mercury registered 15 degrees above zero, while in the afternoon it was recorded at 28 degrees above zero. Similar weather prevailed on Friday. Skies were cloudy throughout the midwest and mild weather prevailed. Snow was reported in the upper and lower lake regions Friday morning.

Skies will continue to be cloudy Friday night and Saturday and there will be no change in temperature, the weatherman says in predictions for this vicinity for the next 24 hours.

Winds are shifting in the south and southwest. At 6 o'clock Friday morning the mercury registered 21 degrees above zero, while at noon it was 28 above zero.

RAINBOW VETERANS MEETING POSTPONED

The monthly meeting of the Appleton Rainbow Veterans organization, which was scheduled for Monday night, has been postponed according to John E. Hantschel, secretary. The organization will not meet until the last Monday in January.

BIRTHS

A son, Raymond Jr., was born to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kunstman, 221 E. McKinley-st., on Christmas day.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schroeder, route 4, Appleton, Sunday.

Bochum, Germany—(P)—The Persian government has hired two local mining experts at $15,000 a year each, to reorganize and modernize the mines of Persia.

As a dock laborer to study law. When he returned to Georgia to marry Miss Rose Lawton Douglas he carried a bag of gold coins to pay off creditors.

Lewis served in the Washington legislature and went to congress from that state. He served in the Spanish-American war, emerging as a colonel. In 1903 he moved to Chicago, and nine years later Illinois sent him to the senate.

Tom B. "Czar" Reed was the house speaker when Lewis first went to Washington. He dubbed the youngster "the garrulous rainbow." One writer described him this way: "Over everything, even as the sun in the sky, looms the whiskers of Jim Ham—rest, pale as steel, a shred of pink and there a somber russet; now shimmering as a golden field of wheat, anon bristling red and angry."

But Lewis had a comeback. He once told a correspondent, "there is no relationship between statesmanship and apparel, sir."

Although Lewis devoted the early years of his attorneyship to criminal cases, of later years all his work has been as a corporation lawyer.

Lewis dress, his diction, his mannerisms are the same whether he be addressing a Gold Coast delegation or a stockyards crowd. At ways the spats, the wing collar, snowy linen, cane and gloves.

"Sir, I repeat, I shall lose more than any man I know on this floor, for if this amendment should pass now in my state the majority of women would vote overwhelmingly against me for any office to which I undertook to aspire."

"Summer" Isles May Soon Become Oceanic Airport

Washington, D. C.—The Bermuda Islands will be the first sea stop of the Europe-bound aerial "fast mail" if present plans for such an oceanic service are consummated.

"When airplanes glide in and out of the Bermudas the islands will have plunged point-blank from the bicycle era in to the airplane age of transportation, without the intermediate stage of automobiles, since all motor vehicles are taboo," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Were there an airport on each island—which of course there could not be—airplanes might land on a different island every day of the year, for there are 365 islands in the group.

Discovered By Shipwreck
"Formerly the tiny land dots were known as the 'Isles of the Devil.' They were shunned by seafarers; not sought as a refuge. In fact they were discovered unwittingly by Juan de Bermudez when he was shipwrecked upon them. 'The Summer Isles,' the natives now call them, and the quiet, quaint tourists' haven owes its existence to one of Nature's most violent forces—the volcano.

"The islands are projecting peaks of a mighty, submerged extinct volcano, based on the ocean floor, 15,000 feet below the surface, and if the water were drained off the mountain would be a prototype of the land-anchored Mont Blanc, in Europe. Instead of snow, this mountain is crowned with a layer of coral which, through the ages with the help of sea and wind, has gradually built up low white limestone hills. Since the Titanic disturbance which created it, the volcano has settled slowly so that in places the coral is just below the water, forming a ring of treacherous reefs and the famous marine gardens.

"The islands are arranged like a giant fishhook, 580 miles from Cape Hatteras. On approaching land a steamer picks up a pilot, then turns completely around and doubles back on its track. Actually the vessel is proceeding through a narrow opening in the outer ring of reefs and is picking a course slowly inside, following the shore line. Whitish patches on the turquoise water indicate coral shoals. Where the ship channel is narrow one may look over the side and see jagged chunks of highly colored coral.

Harbor Snug Fit
"Once inside the harbor of Hamilton, capital of Bermuda, the vessel is turned around and moored to the dock. So narrow and tiny is this harbor that it seems as if the bow and stern would touch the banks as the ship is warped around. From the decks passengers look down on the little 'Bermudas' as if from a tower. Lines of carriages, once the pride of Fifth Avenue, are drawn up, natives with bicycles stare at the ship and the life of the town in general seems to stop and gather to see the event of the week, the arrival of the mail packet!

"Clean, little two-story houses, as white as the icing on a cake, according to Mark Twain, dot the rolling hillsides around the harbor amid dark green native cedars, palms and gar-dens. Tall American-looking hotels and the Hamilton Cathedral break the sky line.

Bicycle Traffic Watched
"The absence of automobiles does not prevent strict enforcement of traffic rules. 'Reckless bicycle riding,' cutting in front of traffic officers at intersections, or riding on the wrong side of the street are serious traffic offenses.

"Bermudians either farm or cater to tourists, who cater principally to Americans. Easter lilies are the best known export. Early vegetables are shipped in large quantities, especially onions. There are no income or property taxes. Practically all government revenues are collected from the customs duties on imported articles.

"Houses are built by sewing blocks of white limestone from a quarry near the house site and fitting them together. Even the smooth, sloping roofs are made of limestone slabs which harden when exposed. Because of the porous soil there are no rivers or springs in Bermuda, and therefore house is required by law to make of the roof a rain catch, adequate to supply the water needs of its occupants.

Acres of Lilies
"Connecting various towns, many of them bearing English names, are smooth, orange-colored lanes, slippery and treacherous when wet to cyclists. Sometimes these roads lead along the water's edge, affording lovely vistas of the blue ocean through the native cedar trees cut through limestone hills in miniature man-made canyons, or are lined with scarlet and pink oleanders which bloom for nine months of the year. During the early spring months lilies carpet acres of reddish-brown top soil and perfume the air for miles. Cardinals, bluebirds, goldfinches, humming birds and many other North American birds have found refuge in the islands.

"Bermuda's government is patterned after that of its motherland, Britain. A man must be a property owner to vote or hold office. If he is a landholder in several parishes he is entitled to vote in each one. Bermudians are proud that theirs is the oldest English colony in the New World, since it was settled in 1610 by Sir George Somers. The streets of St. Georges, the first settlement, lead down to the central market square. They were built that way to give protection in case of invasion."

NEW TUSSLE FOR DEBENTURE PLAN LOOMS IN SENATE

Return of Borah and Norris Practically Assures Renewal of Fight

Washington—(P)—The return of William E. Borah of Idaho and George W. Norris of Nebraska to the United States senate virtually assures a renewal of the farm fight for the export debenture before a new and more favorable congress.

It was Norris who introduced the resolution by which the senate wrote the export debenture plan into its draft of the tariff act of 1929, and it was Borah who led the long, fruitless battle to have it enacted over the protest of house conferees.

Predicting another effort to revive the export debenture, Senator Borah said: "It is my belief that until the debenture is put into operation the wheat growers and other important groups of agricultural producers will not be benefited in any degree by governmental action."

Certificates Negotiable
Briefly, the export debenture plan is an arrangement whereby exporters of agricultural products of which there is a surplus, receive from the treasury department certificates with a face value established by congress and intended to represent the difference in costs of production between this and foreign countries.

Such certificates are negotiable and good for their face value in payment of import tariffs.

Thus if the debenture were operative, the wheat farmer would receive for his product the world price plus the value of the debenture certificate.

Would Reduce Revenue
Opposition to the scheme centers chiefly around the contention that it would reduce the federal revenue from customs receipts, dollar for dollar, the amount of the debentures.

For example, if this country exported 300,000,000 bushels of wheat on which was issued debentures of 21 cents a bushel, importers who purchased the certificates for bringing dutiable products into the country would keep $63,000,000 out of the treasury.

Farm groups generally favor the process for, theoretically, the $63,000,000 would go into the farmers' pockets.

EXPECT MONEY RATES WILL CONTINUE LOW

business and as a notification to the country that there is an abundance of money for all legitimate banking purposes.

Internationally, too, the low re-discount rate may help in the world-wide stabilization of money rates, for nowadays what the federal reserve system does in this country in fixing the money rate has an immediate effect upon the central banking systems of other countries.

With call money at a low figure and with the rediscount rate at 2 per cent, the large funds available for investment will naturally seek something better than 2 per cent. This means that the bond market will improve because of the purchase by investors of many of the high grade bonds that are now selling at low prices. The important thing, however is that the banking world should regard the low money rates as permanent. No money rates are, of course, permanent in a sense of lasting for a year without change, but if the banking world realized that the federal reserve intended to keep money rates at a low level it is considered probable that many cautious investors would begin 1931 with effort to get something better than 2 per cent for their money.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

The Christmas program at Emanuel Evangelical church Wednesday night was witnessed by a large crowd, the church being filled to capacity. White Gift offering was received at this time to be used for various religious purposes.

The program included an organ prelude and a hymn by the congregation, a recitation by Wayne Glan-inap and Marion Schultz, a Christmas play by the juniors and intermediates, and numbers by the classes of Mrs. G. Breitrick, Mrs. J. Schmeickel, Mrs. William Saiberlich, Miss L. Kolath, Mrs. F. Jahas, Mrs. J. Selig, and Mrs. B. Greb. The program closed with benediction.

MAN CHARGED WITH POSING AS PHYSICIAN

August Metchet, Sheboygan, Has Previously Been Convicted On Same Charge

August Metchet, Alias Jerry Metchet, Sheboygan, is in the county jail here awaiting arraignment in municipal court on charges of practicing medicine without a license. The warrant was issued by Stanley A. Stalld, district attorney, on complaint of Walter A. Drews, an investigator for the state board of health.

It is charged in the complaint that Metchet treated William Koehnke, Sr., and Gregory Van Erm, both of the town of Grand Chute, District Attorney Stalld said Koehnke died three days after Metchet started treating him late in September. Mr. Stalld also said that since the investigation into Metchet's activities have started that his office has been receiving numerous complaints about the man. He said they are being investigated.

It was expected Metchet would be taken into court Friday afternoon. He was arrested at Sheboygan yesterday by Sheboygan officials and was brought back to Appleton by Undersheriff Edward Lutz. Mr. Stalld said Metchet has been convicted in Sheboygan on for practicing medicine without a license.

POOR GET GIFTS FROM CHRISTMAS PARTY

Collection of gifts for the poor—furniture, toys, groceries, money, and clothes—occupied a large part of the Christmas program at Memorial Presbyterian church Tuesday evening. Enough money was contributed to buy a chicken and vegetables for every family on the Presbyterian poor list.

An old-fashioned Christmas program, with Yuletide songs, recitations and dramatizations, followed family supper. A playlet, a Christmas eve scene in a children's bedroom, was put on by George Ballard's Sunday School class. Harold Everson and Robert Palmer were the sleeping youngsters, and Santa Claus, Jr., was played by Max Smith.

Glen Pelton was in charge of the program.

Manufacturers Believe Next Year Will Lift Industry
From Depression

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright 1930 By Cons. Press
Washington — (CPA) — Radio set manufacturers, after riding the industrial toboggan this year, are looking forward to 1931 as the year that will carry them out of the throes of their first depression.

The effects of overproduction along with the general economic slump, have been felt all this year by the radio industry.

Latest industrial estimates are that 3,500,000 receiving sets were sold during 1930. But of this number about 750,000 sets were carry-over stock from 1929. No estimate as to the proceeds from these sales is as yet available.

In striking contrast to 1930 conditions, first official figures on receiving set sales for 1929 compiled by the census bureau show that nearly 5,000,000 sets found their way from the factories to the consumers. The wholesale value of these sets at the factory was 250,602,162.

Large Increase
All told, according to the statistics of the census bureau, manufacturers realized about $376,000,000 in radio business during 1929, which represented more than a 60 per cent increase as compared with the preceding year. The census of 1927.
This figure included radio sets, combination phonographs and radios, transmitting sets, loud speakers and accessories. Radio tubes were not included in the survey.

The industry reports that at the end of 1930 stocks of receivers on hand are relatively low, particularly as compared to the same time last year, when more than a million sets were dumped into the open market, precipitating a price-cutting war.
Many of the old-line manufacturers failed to survive this industrial ordeal. There will be some dumping this year, particularly of midsize sets after Christmas, but such sales of distress merchandise "will be mild as compared with those of the spring of 1930," it is reported.

There are about 13,500,000 receiving sets now in use. Based upon past trade experience, the average life of a home receiver is four years; hence the industry believes more than 3,000-000 sets will be needed next year for replacements alone.

Newest Ideas
Moreover, new developments in small, compact, low-priced midsize receivers, automobile receivers, farm sets using the new low-drain battery tubes, and automatic record-changing phonograph combinations, along with the home-recording set, will all reach new markets and assure a large number of additional sales. Thus the industry anticipates a 4,000,000 set turnover, but with less dollar cost per unit than in previous years. Next year's models already are on the market, with the listener getting more for his radio dollar than ever before.

Improvements in broadcasting conditions and increases in power of broadcasting stations may also be expected to open up new territories," according to the industry, "and these, with the new industrial and business uses of sets now being developed, will, it is expected, restore 1931 volume to past prosperous levels."

OFFICER ARRESTED ON SMUGGLING CHARGE

Indio, Cal. — (AP) — Frederick
Schnell, a federal immigration officer, was in jail here today, charged with smuggling aliens into the United States over the Mexican border.
Schnell's arrest followed an accident yesterday in which his machine was wrecked and one Chinese fatally injured. The car crashed into a bridge guard rail in turning out for another machine, driven by R. W.
Little, deputy collector of internal revenue.

Little, according to Francis A.
Koehler, police chief, found Schnell in uniform near the wreckage of his car and four Chinese hiding nearby.
Schnell admitted, Koehler said, that he was smuggling the aliens into this country.

Fletcher Amhardt of Los Angeles, riding with Schnell and the Chinese,
also was arrested.

ITALIAN PLANES AWAIT OCEAN HOP

Take-off For Natal, Brazil,
Not Expected Until Next Week

Bolama, Portuguese Guinea—(AP)—
A fleet of 14 Italian seaplanes reposed on the calm Atlantic waters here today ready for their great adventure.

As soon as all preparations are made and weather conditions are right 12 of the planes will strike out across the open ocean for Natal, Brazil, on the first transatlantic flight of such a large air squadron.
From Natal they will fly to Rio De Janeiro and possibly to Buenos Aires.

The distance of about 1,300 miles is to be patrolled by a number of Italian destroyers and other naval vessels which will be ready to meet for any locality where one of the planes' wireless may indicate the ship is coming down.

The planes flew here yesterday from Villa Cisneros, Rio De Oro, arriving at 4:30 p. m., local time.

The take-off for Natal is not expected until next week.

The planes took off from Orbetello,
Italy, Dec. 17, for Cartagena, Spain.
Bad weather forced six of the planes to land in the Balearic isles, later to rejoin the fleet. The next hop was to Azores, Azores, and from there the planes flew to Villa Cisneros. They are commanded by General Italo Balbo, Italian air minister.

THE PRICE OF SILVER
During the last year we have been listening to a recitation of alleged causes for sluggishness of trade conditions including the tariff, the World War, the gold standard, prohibition, over-production, under-consumption and so on.
Senator Key Pittman of Nevada asserts that under-consumption due to the low price of silver is the major reason at the bottom of all the world's difficulties and because the serious drop in the price of silver has so crippled foreign countries as to render them unable to continue to purchase our exports. The Pittman opinion has confirmation. President Hoover stated that "the buying power of India and China, dependent upon the price of silver, has been affected." Thomas W. Lamont wrote that one of the chief causes of world depression is "the scarcity of gold and the depressed price of silver."
In the world today there is approximately 8 billion dollars worth of money gold of which the United States has 4 1/2 billion, France 2 billion, England 850 million, leaving but 650 million to supply the needs of the rest of the world. Therefore an average of 19 out of 20 countries of the world having no gold to speak of, depend upon silver for a measure of value.
Senator Pittman directs attention to the fact that from 1900 to 1925 the price of silver remained fairly stable at 64 cents per ounce as a basis of its exchange for gold, and that this rate was maintained on account of the normal yearly rate production and consumption of silver, which averaged about 250 million ounces per year. But in 1925 the "British government for India adopted the gold standard and began to melt up and sell as bullion on the world market the silver money of India."
In this situation the price of silver began to fall until in 1930 it averaged around 34 cents per ounce or about one-half its normal price. The senator continues: "The fact that the British government had several hundred million ounces of silver which it could dump on the market at any time, and which the world could not consume, not only reduced the price one-half but, by its threat to further indefinitely reduce such price, destroyed its value for credit. The result was inevitable. Panic exists among more than half the people of the world whose buying power is measured solely in silver. It has cut in two the purchasing power of China, Mexico, South America, Asia and several European countries."
Of course the remedy is to cease melting up and dumping on the world markets money silver as a bullion commodity. But does not the remedy sound too simple in this complicated world with its complication of causes? To that school which is claiming that over-production and not under-consumption is the cause of the trouble let us put the case of wheat. The wheat crop of 1930 coming from the great production wheat centers of the world was less than that of 1928, yet the price in 1928 was 40 per cent higher. Is there any other answer than that in 1928 the people of the world as a whole had more money to spend? So far as the figures are concerned they show that with a surplus of money people not only buy manufactured goods beyond the bare necessities of life but actually eat more. And while we must not be beguiled into the rash conclusion that any single cause in this confusing world of billions of people scattered in hundreds of lands is solely responsible for the prevailing under-consumption, Senator Pittman's claim is entitled at least to be placed among those which may have a material bearing upon the situation.

AN END OF PESSIMISM
The universe is on its way to extinction, and there is no remote possibility that the process can be halted. So says Sir James Jeans, secretary of the British Royal Society, in the recently-issued annual report of the Smithsonian Institution. This, of course, is far from being the first time that a scientist of international reputation has made this statement. The thing has been said, now and again, for a full century, and most literate people are thoroughly familiar with the fact. The interesting thing in this case is the way it serves to underline the profound shift in intellectual attitudes that is taking place in the world.
When scientists first began to analyze the material world, to estimate its age and to make speculations about the length of time that remained to it, they engendered a great wave of pessimism. It was felt, by thoughtful people, that these speculations and analyses had banished God from the skies and hope from the human breast. The concept of a soulless mechanistic universe, far from being new, came into popularity a generation or two ago; and it was chiefly the work of the scientists that was responsible.
That attitude has colored human activities for a considerable time. It has been especially important in literature. Our highest honors are reserved for men who assure us that man is an unimportant accident, beset by inscrutable natural forces that frustrate his very desire. It has been fashionable, in the intellectual world, to be a deep-dyed pessimist.
But consider now this fact: Sir James Jeans, quoted above, is not only one of the world's ranking men of science; he is also one of the leaders in a spirited revolt against this dark-hued mechanistic theory. He sees the material world going down to decay and death, as did his predecessors; but he does not draw the same lesson from the spectacle.
Probably a new set of values is being brought into the world. The set under which we have lived during the last few decades has proven woefully inadequate. Our pessimism has not sustained us. Sir James is only one of a number of men who are pointing the way to a new and less gloomy outlook.

MR. HESS' LETTER
In the People's Forum tonight we are publishing a letter written by the general counsel for the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America in the matter of the Supreme Court decision invalidating a part of the motion picture contract, and comment upon which was had in this column on November 28th.
The expression, "movie trust," there used was made in the popular sense and not with the idea of indicating that the standard exhibition contract was in all respects in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act but only in the respects mentioned.
We did not regard the decision of the Supreme Court as a criticism of the purpose of those in the movie industry to violate the law. It is a well known fact that compliance with the Sherman Anti-Trust law is found most difficult because of differences of opinion as to when a contract does violate the law. That act is written in general terms and courts have long disputed and disagreed over its interpretation and enforcement. That the trial court in the movie case held with that industry and believed its holding was in conformity to former decisions of the Supreme Court may be cited as evidence against any conclusion of bad faith upon the part of the industry itself.
We are glad of course to print Mr. Hess' letter in presentation of his side of the controversy.

PORTO RICAN DIPLOMATS
Theodore Roosevelt, governor of Porto Rico, urges that the U. S. government train young Porto Ricans for diplomatic and consular service in South America.
Governor Roosevelt points out that Porto Rico is a place where North and South American cultures meet and blend. The Porto Rican is of Spanish culture, blood and tradition; but he is, also, proud of his American citizenship. He should make an ideal representative for us below the equator.
Most of our troubles in South America have been due to lack of understanding. As Governor Roosevelt says, the policy he suggests would go far to create a bond of sympathy and comprehension.

An adult man should weigh about 150 pounds for five feet in height, with five and a half pounds added for each inch above this figure.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA
Christmas Day
HOME AGAIN AFTER A FASHION... we mean we had quite a time trying to get anywhere... yeah, the train was so late we hadda run miles and miles... our taxi driver simply loved red lights... he stopped at every one in Chicago... we got on the electric car just before it left... only it didn't start for a while... Willie dropped the tickets under the train and the conductor wouldn't believe that he had bought any... so we hadda hold up the train while half of Sam Insull's employees got under and looked... even if it was Christmas eve, the conductor wouldn't give in... well we found the tickets finally and we almost got apoplexy wondering if the train was going to start up and leave half of Mr. Insull's employees in a very hash-like condition under the wheels... maybe the conductor would n't trust us because Willie was wearing his derby... it was a new derby even if the depression is on and maybe the conductor thought we were criminal persons... but maybe he never heard of Green Bay where there is no depression... that's where Willie is from... that train was late, too...

We are undertaking a new marathon contest while we pound out the column. Yeah, we're filling up on Christmas candy at the end of each sentence—or maybe it's at every comma. The idea is to see whether we can finish before we drop over with the heebie jeebies.

ALIBI
And if the efforts aren't so hot today—well, we were using a strange typewriter.

Wild Bill is wondering whether we tried to insult him with our Christmas present to him. (Wild bill is not Willie.) He told us to be sure to get him something appropriate—we gave him pajamas.

Most stores and cities report one of the biggest Christmas businesses in history. But don't tell anybody, they'll just think it's more propaganda to bring back prosperity.

The silliest thing in the world is Rudy Vallee singing "Baby's Birthday Party Day." Well can ya imagine somebody crooning:
"Turn, turn, turn, yummie,
"They'll get a pain in the tummy!"
Yeah, crooning it! And he did it on Christmas, too.

For the sake of being just plain humane, we wish that when the New Year was welcomed into Wisconsin that they'll give the poor little tykes something besides a pair of diapers. Yeah, every picture you see shows him running around darned near au naturel—sometimes he isn't wearing even a diaper—just a banner. And who can ward off pneumonia with a banner?

Give 'em 1931 some clothes this year, depression or no depression.

Today's Anniversary
DEWEY'S BIRTH
On Dec. 26, 1897, George Dewey, an American naval officer, famed for destroying the Spanish Asiatic fleet in the Spanish-American war, was born in Montpelier, Vt.
After graduating from the United States naval academy in 1888 he began active service on the Mediterranean station. On his return, he participated in several Civil War engagements under Farragut.
In 1898, at the outbreak of the war with Spain Dewey, then a commodore, was appointed to the command of the Asiatic station. On May 1 he entirely destroyed the Spanish fleet at Manila bay without the loss of a man in his own fleet. In recognition of this achievement he was appointed a rear admiral and was especially honored by congress. He later co-operated in the capture of Manila. He received an enthusiastic reception on his return to the United States and in the same year was made admiral of the navy. He is the only officer who has ever held that rank.

Looking Backward
TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

BANANAS FOR BABIES BUT NO PEANUTS.
Again I beg parents and others to give the baby plenty of banana but not to allow him to have peanuts or salted nuts in any form until he is 6 years old or older.
Particularly the puny infant, the baby that fails to gain in weight and strength as he should, the baby that suffers from constipation, the daily ration of fresh ripe raw banana benefits. This should be fed to the infant at the age of four months, beginning with a half teaspoonful of the soft, sweet, yellow pulp the first day a teaspoonful the second day, and day after day increase the amount given by about a teaspoonful so that after a month the baby will have, say, half a banana a day. Then after another month or two the baby should have a whole banana every day.
Don't add anything to the banana. See to it that only well ripened banana is given the baby. When a banana is well ripened the skin is golden yellow, flecked with brown spots, not black bruised marks. The pulp of the well ripened banana is soft, but not mushy, yellow, not black, and quite sweet. Thousands of mothers have found that the puny baby not only thrives on a suitable banana ration but soon ceases to be constipated or require artificial aids of any kind for normal bowel function.
That's that. I reiterate it here in order to reassure those who still follow Holt and other antique "authorities."

While I heartily approve the feeding of bananas to the baby, I must condemn any extension of such generosity to include peanuts and castor oil.
Now so far as I know there is nothing at all objectionable in feeding peanut oil to an infant in lieu of butter or milk fat, nor is there any good reason why little tots should not have plenty of peanut butter on their bread or crackers. Indeed the household that makes liberal use of peanut butter in the feeding of the children is a well managed household, in my judgment. There is scarcely another item of food that surpasses peanuts, as a staple of the dietary, all factors—nutritive value, digestibility palatability and cost—being considered.
But no peanuts or salted peanuts for the children under 5 years of age.
Here is why not:
Dear Dr. Brady:
Last Sunday our baby aged 20 months got hold of a salted peanut. Some of it went down the wrong way.
That "going down the wrong way" meant aspiration, breathing into the chest the foreign body or bit of food.
Both my husband and myself were near him at the time, but failed to notice anything until he gave a choked cry. We shook him upside down and tried every way to relieve him, but he only seemed to grow worse. So my husband started giving him artificial respiration, while I called our doctor, who arrived in 10 minutes. They rushed the baby to the hospital, where they had a terrible time, but when it was all over the doctor said it was the artificial respiration that had saved the child. We just happened to know the method because we had read the description you gave in your column. But please send us your booklet on Artificial Respiration, so we can show our friends in black and white. Sincerely, Mrs. S.

(Note—If Mrs. S. sees this, will she kindly write and give me her address? I failed to notice in time where the letter came from, and I should like to keep it as a Gold Star Letter—that is, a letter telling how life has been saved thru application of knowledge gained thru this column.)
The aspiration of pieces of peanut is of course a grave enough accident, even if the child coughs the foreign body up. But in many instances the peanut lodges somewhere in the bronchus, and the skilled service of a doctor who does bronchoscopy is necessary. Such doctors are few and far between. Whether the peanut is located and successfully removed thru the bronchoscope or not, its presence in the chest is likely to induce inflammatory reaction and either a pneumonia or lung abscess as a complication.

Editor Appleton Post-Crescent:
I should like to take this occasion to correct the wrong impression in your editorial of November 23, in the Appleton Post-Crescent that the Supreme Court decisions make necessary the rebuilding of the entire structure of the film production organization.
In answer to some general misinterpretations of the Supreme Court decisions, permit me to point out that they did not dissolve any so-called "movie trust" as there is none to dissolve. The decrees did not abolish the wholesaling of motion pictures, which is known as "blockbooking." They did not hold the Standard Exhibition Contract to be a violation of law, but only one clause which provided for arbitration. The actions were not based on the premise that there was a monopoly compelling or forcing exhibitors to take what pictures were offered.
One of the two decisions of the Supreme Court affirmed the lower court decision declaring the arbitration clause of the Standard Exhibition Contract to be in conflict with the provision of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law because of its group enforcement feature. Under it the exhibitors and distributors agreed to abide by the arbitration awards of the board on which each had equal representation. Since the decree of the lower court over a year ago this system of arbitration has been abandoned. Exhibitors and distributors are now working together on a plan that will save the benefits of arbitration.
The other decision had no relation to the Standard Contract but to a

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Feed the Baby.
Besides the breast, my 4 months old baby has the juice of one orange daily. When should I give her other foods? (Mrs. M. H. A.)
Answer—Banana, manna. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for nursing and weaning, and for feeding the baby.
No Symptoms on Hand.
I saw your articles on duodenal ulcer. Please tell me the symptoms of this trouble... (L. M.)
Answer—We're all out of symptoms today, but I might tell you the way to prevent the trouble, or menus for patients not under medical care. For these, send stamped envelope bearing your address, and 10 cents, and ask for "Guide to Right Eating."
Subject To Quinsy.
I have had very painful attacks of quinsy sore throat for nearly every year the past eight years. What causes this? Is there anything that can be done to prevent it besides having my tonsils removed. (Mrs. S. H.)
Answer—Quinsy is abscess usually around the tonsil rather than in the tonsil. Recurring attacks season after season are due to a chronic septic focus in the tonsil. If you dislike the idea of the operation, why not have the diathermy treatment? It is quite as effective as the old Spanish custom, and preferable from every point of view. I should think medicinal applications directly to the tonsils, made by the doctor, or by any intelligent person the doctor will instruct, are often effective in aborting or preventing simple sore throat or simple tonsillitis, but seldom seem to do any good in quinsy.
Party Does Not Answer.
Please forget about the tonsils and cri for a while and write some articles on colitis, its causes, symptoms, etc... (Mrs. L. W. J.)
Please inform me of the symptoms of coffee heart, and the medical term for it. (S. P.)
Answer—Contrary to the policy of this department to provide people with symptoms.

Many Uses For New Vegetable
Athens, Ga. — (AP) — Georgia is growing a new vegetable—the chayote.
The delicacy, full of vitamins for children and adapted to many culinary uses, is a native of tropical America. Department of agriculture and college farm experts see the vegetable as an important southern crop.
The chayote is a fall and winter vegetable produced on a climbing vine with perennial roots. The plant belongs to the cucumber family but is not as hardy and prolific. The chayote is pear-shaped and contains a single edible seed. The flavor is similar to that of the summer squash. They may be eaten boiled, creamed, in salads, baked, stuffed, fried, in soups, stews or pickled. The seed has a nut-like flavor and is said to be very nutritious.
FINS FOR STABILITY
Pomona, Cal.—Dr. C. M. Vance of this city has perfected an airplane which has fish-like fins to increase stability. There are two horizontal flippers under the nose of the ship for fore and aft stability. Vertical fins underneath the upper wing are said to prevent side slips and tail spins.

The Tynmites
By Hal Cochran
THE Bird Man quite amused the bunch. Soon Scouty said, "I have a hunch that there is something trick in the way that queer man acts. I hardly think his pecking's done 'cause he thinks that it is fun." "Of course not," said the Travel Man. "Here are the real true facts:
"That man's a hunter. Yes sree! And he's as clever as can be. By dressing up like some big birds he catches lots of prey. He crawls but never says a word. The birds think he's another bird. And with a stick, he kills some. Then the others fly away."
"Oh, gee! That's cruel!" Clowney cried. The friendly Travel Man just smiled, and answered, "You are right, my son. But birds are good to eat. So, tricky hunters, every day, go 'round and get their food that way. They tell me that the birds they cook taste very nice and sweet."
"But, now, let's be upon our way. We'll reach some other town today."

MILLIONS SEND YULE MESSAGES OF GOOD CHEER

Increased Volume of Business Predicted for Telegraph Companies

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright by Cons. Press
Washington—Millions of messages of good will and holiday greetings sped over the wires, under the sea, through the air and in the mails yesterday. There will be more than 3,000,000 telegrams sent and received before Jan. 2 and the larger part of these will contain Christmas greetings.

One telegraph company is counting on handling at least 2,000,000 messages. Last Christmas the cable greetings carried by that company totaled approximately 140,000. The radio communications companies and the other telegraph companies will handle their full quota.

In 1929 these telegraphic Christmas greetings showed an increase of 19 per cent as compared with 1928 in land telegrams and 36 per cent in cables. The way has been smoothed for expansion of these messages by decorative blanks, suggested sentiments and prompt service.

There were no mail deliveries Christmas day but Wednesday and Friday every postman's back will be bowed with the weight of expressions of good will.

See Less Mail
The postoffice department expected a reduced volume of mail this year, according to Arch Coleman, assistant postmaster general, but if there is any drop it will be small. It certainly will be far less than the falling off in business mail this year. The real rush will be at Christmas, for the custom of sending New Year's greetings has been fading out, due to the habit of sending a combined Christmas and New Year's card on Dec. 25. The heaviest volume of mail comes from individuals, each sending from 25 to 100 cards, who usually mail them all at once.

The average city usually can be counted on to provide 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 cards for each 500,000 inhabitants. In the rural communities the ratio of cards per person is much smaller.

About 200,000 additional workers have been put on the payrolls by the postoffice to handle this huge volume of mail. There extra workers will work an average of 5 days each, so that the holiday period will furnish at least 1,000,000 days temporary employment and pay.

The heavy volume of mail usually continues until about Dec. 27. The dead letter office force, however, must be increased approximately 50 per cent for six weeks following Christmas in order to handle the large amount of undeliverable mail which is always received. Few persons put a return address on Christmas cards and in addressing large numbers of envelopes, mistakes in streets, numbers and towns are always likely to creep in.

The air mail is a boon to the last-minute mailer and will handle many sacks over the longer distances today.

ONE OUT OF FIVE IN LABOR RANKS HIT BY NO WORK

Jobless Problem Has Overshadowed Others for Entire Year Now

Washington — (P) — Labor enters the new year engaged in fierce combat with its deadliest enemy—unemployment.

For a year the jobless problem has overshadowed others. Since last January, 20 per cent or more of the members of the American federation of labor have been unemployed.

Workers' incomes, federation officials say, have been reduced 20 per cent since last year because of unemployment, part time unemployment and wage cuts. The average worker's income was reduced $120 a year. Cost of living has not declined enough to compensate this loss, labor leaders say.

"Labor demands that industry and society secure a practical solution for the problem of unemployment," says William Green, president of the federation. "Mass consumption is essential to prosperity. Workers must have in this way a continuous employment with an annual income."

At the White House conferences a year ago leaders of industry and of labor pledged cooperation to mitigate depression. Business heads promised to do their utmost to maintain the rate of wages and to distribute work evenly. Labor chiefs agreed to urge effort in production and to prevent conflict and dispute.

Committee Providing Work
Commenting on the results of this concerted effort, President Hoover said: "We have had nation-wide co-operation and team play which have greatly ameliorated the hardships of this depression."

The national emergency committee on employment starts 1931 functioning in high gear. It is providing government work on buildings and roads. It has stimulated state, city and county action and has enlisted the cooperation of business men, labor and all citizens in a general relief program.

Labor leaders praise these emergency measures but hold that con-

500 Young People At Eagle Party

FRATERNAL Order of Eagles held its annual children's Christmas party Thursday night at Eagle hall with over 500 children in attendance. The program opened with the singing of "Silent Night" by the audience with Alfred Herman at the piano. The Rev. George A. Schlemmer, pastor of St. Edward church, Mackville, was the speaker of the evening. He spoke on The Christ Child and the Origin of Santa Claus.

The program included reading by Lila Furd, Bernice Becker, Rosaline Besterwald, Germaine Calmes, Junior Schillabel, Ethel Dunsirn, Harold Lloyd Steward, Howard, Harold, and Gordon Schroeder, Eunice De Witt, Carl Heineemann, Barbara Heineemann, Joseph Besterwald, Helen and Caroline Koester, Leon Uman, Kenneth Lausman, Dolores Filz, Ruth Anderson, Beulah Schillabel, Francis Hopfensperger, Elizabeth Knuit, Margaret Scheffer, Pearl Lehman, Harry Zabel, Donald Vanham, Buddy Koester, Lawrence De Wall, Leonard De Wall, and Lloyd Murphy.

Those who sang were Robert Hoffman, Carl Salentine, Gladys Missing, the Lindauer children, Caroline Van James Zelinski, Jack Hahn, Oley Meyers, Eleanor and Clifford Lutz, Betty Schimpf and Betty Leander with Germaine Calmes, under the piano, Junior, Eugene, and Shirley Sager, Marian Staedt, Mary and June Vogel, Gladys Missing, and Ramona Roehl.

Germaine Dolan gave three dance numbers and Norbert Dolan played the piano accompaniment. Lawrence Hopfensperger presented two accordion solos and Della Krueger, Agnes Patzer, and Roger Lidge gave piano selections. Paye and Ann Rosenbald danced. Agnes Cotter gave a piano solo, and the audience sang several numbers accompanied by Alfred Herman at the piano.

At the close of the program, Santa Claus led the march and each child received a bag of candy, nuts, cookies, and popcorn balls.

The meeting of Women's Catholic Order of Foresters which was to have been held Wednesday night was postponed. The court will meet at 8 o'clock Monday night at Catholic home.

A short business meeting of Fidelity chapter, Order of Eastern Star, was held Wednesday night at Masonic temple. The next meeting will be Jan. 14 when new officers will be installed.

ANNOUNCE TROTH AT YULE PARTY

The engagement of Miss Anita Schierl, 704 Broad-st., Menasha, to Leonard Hedberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hedberg, 1002 N. State-st., was announced at a party Christmas night at the Hedberg home. About 30 guests were present, those from out of town being Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kleinschmidt, Pond du Lac, and Mr. and Mrs. V. Celleschowski, Oshkosh.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hein, 724 W. Harris-st., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruth to Raymond Van Berkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Van Berkle, 817 W. Franklin-st. The announcement was made at a party Christmas eve at the Hein home at which about 15 people were present. Cards, music and dancing provided the entertainment. No date has been set for the wedding.

TOO MANY KISSES

Los Angeles—Probably it was affection on her husband's part, but his constant kissing got so boring to Dorothy Canfield and she went to court, entered a complaint—and got a divorce. She said that her husband "used to kiss me all the time. Every evening I'd have to sit up on his lap and kiss him, hour after hour. He wouldn't let friends come to see us because he couldn't spare the time from kissing."

Filmland's Newest Newlyweds

The other day Bill Boyd and Dorothy Sebastian, movie stars, hopped a plane for Las Vegas, Nev. On arrival there they hopped up a better of the peace and got married; then they hopped their plane again and hurried back to Hollywood, as each had to go to work in the studio the following day. Here they are—Hollywood's newest newlyweds.

Miss Doherty Makes Debut In Capital This Evening

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Silk hats and ermine wraps, jewels, and diplomatic decorations held ready today for a night-after-Christmas event of rare proportions even in the cosmopolitan capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, of New York, will present to society their daughter, Miss Helen Lee Doherty, at a ball stupendous in its size and lavishness of arrangements.

New York's "400," coming by special train, and Washington's highest officialdom will join in the holiday festivity for Miss Doherty.

PARTIES

Pythian Sisters, Knights of Pythias, and their families were entertained at a Christmas party Monday night at Castle hall. About 150 people were present at the 6:30 dinner, after which a Christmas program was presented by the children. Santa Claus arrived to distribute candy, nuts, fruit, and popcorn balls, and gifts were exchanged. A large Christmas tree formed the principal decoration. The committee in charge of arrangements included Mrs. E. J. Weaver, chairman; Mrs. W. P. McGowan; Mrs. Gilbert Trent-lage and Mrs. Oscar Kunitz.

Ladies Auxiliary of Eagles will hold an open card party at 8 o'clock Saturday night at Eagle hall. Bridge schafkopf and dice will be played and poultry will be given as prizes for cards and also for the special prize. Mrs. Ellen Heardon will be chairman of the event and she will be assisted by Mrs. Katherine Hoffman, Mrs. Lena Dick, Mrs. Caroline Kramhold, Mrs. Bessie Kimball, Mrs. Zada Goshka, Mrs. Mae Schroeder, Mrs. Barbara Schneider, Mrs. Helen Schavet and Mrs. Lillie Albrecht.

Fraternal Order of Eagles will hold a New Year's eve dance next Wednesday night at Eagle hall. Frederick Brothers of New London will play the program of old time and popular dance tunes beginning at 8 o'clock. Henry Staedt, chairman of the committee, is planning a surprise.

Mrs. Henry G. Meyer, 315 Winnebago-st., entertained at a Christmas party Tuesday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. E. H. Nelson, Amer and Miss Dorothy Stark, Oconto. Bridge was played, prizes being won by Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. August Hafer-bucker, Miss Helen Stark and Mrs. H. B. Loveland.

Members of Appleton Maennerchor and friends will be entertained at a dancing party in the Gil Myse hall at 9 o'clock Saturday evening. It was announced Friday. Music will be furnished by the W. Koletz orchestra.

The Junior Young People's society of St. Paul Lutheran church will be entertained at a party in the parish school auditorium next Tuesday evening. The program is being arranged by the committee in charge.

PLANES TO AID NEW GUINEA MINERS

Hartford, Conn.—Three trim-motorized planes will aid gold miners in the world's most unexplored and unknown island, New Guinea, according to A. S. Cross, manager and chief pilot for the Guinea Airways, Ltd., who recently visited here to make arrangements for plane motors.

Huge dredging machinery will be dismantled and carried 60 miles inland to the scene of mining activities by planes. The total weight of the machinery to be transported into the interior is about 3000 tons and this will be carried in the planes.

Flying conditions are far from ideal. Tropical heat, constant rainfall and frigid temperatures encountered in the high altitudes, are bound to cause many difficulties, Cross contends.

PEDESTRIAN MIRRORS

London—Another invention to aid the poor pedestrian is the rear view mirror to reveal the criminally-inclined autoist who creeps up behind. It is attached to the back of the hat and enables the walker to see what is going on behind.

Shy Child Is Problem For Parents

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Mollie, come and say how do you do to Mrs. Robinson. Come, dear. Mollie. Come right along. Take your finger out of your mouth and come here. Come here. Now say how do you do to Mrs. Robinson."

"You are surely going to say how do you do to Mrs. Robinson who has been so kind to you, brought you a whole box of goodies. Mollie, say how do you do to Mrs. Robinson or go right straight up to bed. You are a very stubborn, naughty girl and when father comes home I'm going to tell him how you disgraced me. Go on up to bed. I'll come up and see about you later on. You naughty child."

A shy child suffers torture. This little girl could no more come forward and say how do you do to Mrs. Robinson than she could bite her own nose. She wanted to do so. She longed to do so. But she could not. To uphold her in the face of her trial was cruel. To call her naughty and send her to bed before company was more cruelty. A suffering child was punished for her pain.

We do not know what makes children shy. We think that there may be a deficiency of some of the essential secretions but we are not sure. We think that perhaps the child has been frightened but we are not certain. But we do know that the child suffers. That the child lacks confidence and power.

Shy children must be helped and encouraged. They must be shown that their fear is futile. That people like them and want to help them. But force will not teach these facts. It will work to the contrary and strengthen the child's fear and increase his doubts.

Deal very gently with the shy child. First have the expert physician go over him and see what can be done to put him in good physical shape. Then feed him well and treat him with great kindness. Never scold or threaten him, do nothing that increases his fear. Fear lies at the root of his difficulty.

Select the people the shy child is to meet. They are to be gentle wise folk who will not insist upon a child's talking to them, will not gush, will not make the child self-conscious. They must be people who will attract the child by their very presence and radiate silence.

Give the child something to hand to the guest and do not ask that he speak at all. Carrying something in the hands helps, rendering service helps. Once the little services rendered thank the child calmly and allow him to escape if he wishes. If he stays in the room pay no more attention to him although your attitude is sympathetic and an occasional smile wanders across to him where he sits behind the table.

Give the child time. Let experience teach him that time is nothing to fear. Guard his experiences so that he learns there is nothing to fear. Love drives out fear. Let him experience be based on love and time will do the rest.

(Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

MISS ANDERSON IS YULE BRIDE

Miss Ruth M. Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Lydia Anderson, 112 Harrison-st., Neenah, and Norman J. Mills, son of Mrs. Anna Mills, route 2, Appleton, were married at noon Christmas day in the parsonage of the Baptist church, Neenah. The Rev. W. E. Gibson performed the ceremony. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Merle Anderson, Neenah. A wedding dinner was served at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother for about 20 immediate relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Mills will make their home on the Mills homestead in Greenville. Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Anna Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Much, Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Mort Furman, Allenville.

Several parties were given in honor of the bride before her marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Much, Greenville, entertained at a miscellaneous shower last week and 20 girls were entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Holver Olson, 205 Harrison-st., Neenah.

90 Years Old

Mrs. Mary Sassman, 417 W. Commercial-st., celebrated Christmas day this year by observing her nineteenth birthday anniversary at her home. She has been a resident of Appleton for the past 24 years.

Her entire family was present to help her celebrate. They include two sons, Fred Sassman and Julius Sassman, Black Creek; and three daughters, Mrs. William Koch, Grand Haven, Mich.; Mrs. John Buehrens, Dorchester; and Mrs. John Walter, Seymour. Mrs. Sassman also has 25 grandchildren and 32 great grandchildren, most of whom were present.

PEETERS CONFIRMED AS P. M. AT LITTLE CHUTE

(Post-Crescent Wash. Bureau)

Washington—The Senate in its final session before the Christmas holidays confirmed the nominations of ten Wisconsin postmasters. They are:

Stephen M. Peeters, Little Chute, reappointment.

Dennis D. Shea, Arena, office became presidential July 1.

Joseph Wahl, Dallas, to succeed G. C. Grinde, resigned.

Joseph W. Jacobson, Dane, office became presidential July 1.

Earl E. Murdoch, Gresham, reappointment.

James E. Brazeau, Neokosh, to succeed the late Postmaster M. G. Heike.

Alton Parks, Pickett, office became presidential July 1.

Clyde C. Ellis, Elkhardt Lake, reappointment.

Various other Wisconsin postmaster nominations, including those of Clarence A. Loescher at Menasha, to succeed W. H. Pierce; Raymond E. Lingsweller at Sturtevant, to succeed J. W. Simmons; Wallace M. Comstock for reappointment at Oconto, and Clarence C. Randolph to succeed H. B. Linde, removed, at East Troy, were held over for action after the holidays.

Tree Loaded With Gifts For Hospital

With Mrs. John Engel Jr. impersonating the Christmas spirit, the Yuletide playlet, "Ye Who Pass By" was presented at the Methodist church Wednesday evening. Speaking parts in the drama were taken by Betty Lohr, Anita Cast, Earl Miller, Fay Kray, Charles Mader, Milton Smith, Edwin Godfrey, and George Nixon.

The Christmas tree was decorated by the Town class. Sheets, pillowslips, towels, and other gifts for the Green Bay hospital were contributed by the pupils of the Church School.

Edwin Godfrey was general chairman of the Christmas entertainment, and Miss Esther Miller was program chairman.

Christmas Mothers' Society of St. Mary Church Will Approach Holy Communion at the 7:30 Mass Sunday Morning at the Church. The Business Meeting Will Be Held the Following Friday Night after the Devotions.

The Christian Endeavor society of Memorial Presbyterian church will not meet Sunday night. The Star League will hold a watch night service Wednesday night at the church.

WHITE HOUSE LOOKS AHEAD TO NEW YEARS

Washington—(AP)—With Christmas past, the White House today looked ahead to the next big holiday and the large reception President and Mrs. Hoover then will give to official Washington and the citizenry.

At 11 o'clock New Year's morning Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will receive members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps and the director general of the Pan-American union.

Ten minutes later the chief justice and the associate justices of the supreme court will head the line of the judiciary living in Washington.

Senators and representatives will follow and then the army, navy and marine corps will be received. Officers down to and inclusive of the grade of lieutenant colonel and commander will be invited.

Next in line will be the chief executive assistants of members of the cabinet and the members of the various boards and commissions.

Members of patriotic organizations will be the last of those in line for the morning reception.

At 1 o'clock, after a hasty luncheon, the President and Mrs. Hoover will begin shaking hands with the long line of citizens who annually troop through the executive mansion.

LONG MAN HUNT

Gunterville, Ala.—A man hunt which lasted 47 years recently came to an end here in the trial of James Neely, 70-year-old mountaineer of this city. He was sought for the killing of Hiram Cooley following trouble over a girl about half a century ago. Neely pleaded self-defense and the jury acquitted him.

Roast Leg of Mutton, Portuguese Style

Take a medium-sized leg of mutton, take out the shank bone, trim well and make an incision at the first joint. Season with a little salt and pepper, rub one-half ounce of butter over and roast for one hour in a pan, basting occasionally with the gravy and turning it once in a while.

Remove from the oven, place on a hot dish and serve with three stuffed tomatoes and three timbales of cooked rice, straining the gravy over it, or it may be garnished with red or white beans cooked in gravy.

Lemon Patties

Put the grated crumbs of one stale loaf of bread in a basin, and pour over one-half pint of boiling milk. When cold, mix in with the grated peel of two lemons, three well-beaten eggs, one-fourth pound of butter beaten to a cream, and sweeten to taste with powdered sugar.

Butter some small cups, fill them with the mixture, and bake for 20 minutes or so in a moderate oven. Turn the patties on a hot dish, pour some wine-sauce over, and serve.

New Slippers Expose More Of Heel And Toe

BY DIANA MERWIN

Paris—(AP)—Evening slippers are shying away from metals.

The gold and silver kids and tissues which have been popular so long because they were so practical are gradually being discarded for failles, crepes and brocade laces which can be dyed to match any gown.

As a result fashionable Parisiennes are buying more evening slippers than they did before, for a colored slipper can be worn with fewer gowns than a silver one.

The metal slippers which were worn show less and less of the silver and gold and more and more of the foot.

Several of the models have no toes at all—just two molded straps across the top of the foot, exposing silk-stockinged toes to the gaze of all.

Others are cut out at the back, leaving the heel exposed.

Silver and gold, however, are often seen in combination with the dyed fabrics. Operated pumps of figured silk in bright colors are often ornamented with a narrow stitching of gold or silver.

By day it seems the fashionable shoe grows plainer and plainer.

TROUSERED SKIRTS FOR STREET WEAR

Paris—(AP)—Trousered walking skirts are a feature of some of the smartest Parisian shops.

The bifurcated models which have been favorites on the beach and in the boudoir have been adapted to street wear by several couturiers.

One of the models of small black and white checks is designed with such fullness that only when the

EVENING SLIPPERS MADE OF GAY TAFFETA

Palm Beach—(AP)—Evening slippers in gaily flowered taffeta are the latest whim of fashion for dancing daughters, dowagers and divorcees of Palm Beach.

These are accompanied by matching evening bags. The slippers are in sandal style with high slender heel and medium vamp.

DEBUTANTE CHOOSE GOLD COLOR FROCK

Washington—(AP)—Gold colored chiffon was chosen as a frock for her debut by Miss Georgeette Terby, niece of Major General and Mrs. Charles H. Bridges.

The dress, made in princess style, was embroidered in gold threads.

NEW SLIT SKIRTS SHOW KNEES AGAIN

Paris—(AP)—Milady seems determined to show her knee in one way or another.

Slit skirts—reminiscent of the styles of 15 years ago—are seen on several of the winter evening models.

One gown of brown satin, made along semi-fitted lines, is slit to the knee—a slit that widens noticeably as the wearer walks.

BLACK RIDING HABITS COME BACK INTO FAVOR

London—(AP)—Riding habits, which last season were dark blue or "dusted blue," have reverted to the classic black with white or canary yellow waistcoat as far as fashionable England is concerned.

Princess Mary's sister-in-law, the Hon. Mrs. Edward Lascelles, has had two black habits made for her.

Typical January Reductions On Fur Trimmed Coats

It has been customary for this store to hold a great Clearance Sale of Women's and Misses' Coats, during the month of January — an event that is eagerly awaited by hundreds of this store's patrons. But this year we have set the clock ahead a week or two and are giving our patrons the advantages of January prices right now in December — the height of the coat wearing season — giving those who have been waiting for the January Sales an opportunity to get an extra month's wear out of their coats, and at the same time the pleasure of wearing them during the holiday festivities.

Every coat in our stocks — and that means coats that have been extremely popular at much higher prices at the beginning of the season is included in these sales at but a fraction of its former price. Coats you'll not only want to wear right now, but coats so good they'll still be good next season. Search where you will, you'll not find better values elsewhere.

START EFFORTS FOR REPEAL OF ILLINOIS LAW

Anti-Saloon League Will Fight Move to Void Dry Measure

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press Chicago.—The effort of wet forces to remove from the statute books the Illinois search and seizure act—a prohibition enforcement law—already is under way preparatory to the assembly of the state legislature next month.

Several of the solons are angling for the chance to have their names appear on the bill, which if enacted, would place this state in the non-enforcing column along with New York, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada.

The basis for this activity was provided by the Nov. 4 referendum which showed that 4,060,004 voters wanted the state enforcement statute repealed compared with 523,130 who wanted it retained.

In two previous sessions those of 1927 and 1929 the lower house of the legislature voted for repeal but the state senate by a vote of 31 to 30 opposed repeal. The referendum this fall showed 89 senatorial districts favorable to ending state enforcement and 12 favoring it.

Whether Illinois decides to place the entire job of liquor law administration on federal forces will depend on whether the state senators consider the November vote a mandate, and whether Governor Louis L. Emmerson, elected two years ago, as a dry, will take the same attitude.

Senate Hopes
Governor Emmerson is ambitious to serve in the senate from a state which several times recently has displayed wetness.

The Anti-Saloon League is calling upon legislators to ignore the state-wide referendum, the leaders assert that while the vote was more than two-to-one in favor of repeal, still the total wet vote was not a majority of the total vote in the presidential election year of 1928.

The wets on the other hand claim that the balloting was extremely heavy for a referendum and was bulwarked by the senatorial vote which showed 1,432,215 for Col. James Hamilton Lewis, the wet Democrat against 587,469 for Ruth Hanna McCormick who stands on the issue and 99,485 for Lottie Holman O'Neill, the Anti-Saloon League candidate.

Repeal of the state enforcement statute would be expected to have little effect in Chicago. No apparent attempt is made to apply this state law locally where estimates of the number of saloons now operating range from 10,000 to 15,000. But it is applied in some of the dry counties downstate and its repeal there would be felt.

EXERCISE AND MASSAGE FOR DOUBLE CHIN

BY ALICIA HART

Proud ladies are less likely to sag under the chin than meek ladies who hang their heads.

Just another reason for lifting your head above life's battles and keeping it there!

If you have let yourself take on a double chin, or—heaven forbid—a triple one, you really deserve a slapping and should give it to yourself and many of them, right where the chin is the fattest.

Slapping and astringents are the best possible treatments for double chin. And of course dieting.

If you have a good padding all over your body and haven't noticed until someone made a remark—in all friendliness—about your double chin then step on a scale. Chances are that you will find you are frightfully overweight.

Diet should be imperative. The subject of diet we will take up later. Right now consider the actual chin treatment that should go along with it, in order to reduce your chin and not have it hang flabby.

In the first place, if you sleep on a high pillow, or any pillow at all that encourages double chin. The carriage of your head, asleep and awake, has more to do with the contour of your chin than you may have imagined.

Sleep without a pillow and try to hold your neck and your chin up.

Begin your chin treatment by massage, up from the center of the chin, towards the ears. Massage the back of the neck and the muscles going out towards the shoulders too. Then throw back your head and begin quick stroking massage of the chin, first with one hand and then with the other, from the base of the neck up and off the edge of the chin.

When you have done this 10 or 12 times, then slap on astringents and slap your neck as long as you have time to give to this. Do it mornings and nights and at noon time if you can take a little time off. Keep the skin moist with astringents while you sleep. Don't be too easy on your double chin. They deserve little consideration. But of course do not be so firm-fingered that you injure the skin.

Exercise, massage and slapping will stir circulation, stimulate it and aid in breaking down the fat that has accumulated there. Only by this type of method can you hope to replace the flabby extra skin there with firm, smooth muscles.

Last, but quite important, tie up the chin at night. Get a chin strap that fits, or make one yourself out of gauze bandage. Tie your chin up after you finish slapping. Also before going out evenings, tie down for 20 minutes with your chin tied up with astringent.

Persistent attention to that double chin will bring results. Just know it will. And keep at it!

Circular Skirt

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON
Scalloped tops centered with buttons of the circular flaring skirt, distinguishes a smart school frock of tete de negre brown wool crepe with beige pin dots. The belt of brown velvet passed beneath the tabs and tied in bow at the back is girlish.

A scalloped Peter Pan collar and flared cuffs of white pique add dainty note.

It's so easy to make and so attractive to wear.

Soft wools in tweed mixtures, jersey and challis prints can be used for this unusually attractive model. And with a little belt of contrasting ribbon, it is truly delightful. The belt may be of self-fabric.

Heavyweight cottons also suitable. Style No. 2670 may be had in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material with 1 yard of 39-inch light and 3 yard of 35-inch dark contrasting.

Our Large Fashion Book shows how to dress up to the minute at the very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, Xmas suggestions, etc.

Be sure to fill in the sizes of the pattern. Send stamps or coin (coin preferred).

WE WOMEN
By Betty Brainerd

ROUTING THE INFERIORITY COMPLEX

"Dear Betty Brainerd: I am 20, rather tall, dark, good shape, dress well and don't say I'm beautiful nor do I say I'm homely—but I have an inferiority complex.

"I imagine I'm not as nice looking as the next girl and the result is when I meet a boy I treat him coldly and distantly, thinking he doesn't wish to be bothered with me. When I meet an acquaintance in the street, I pretend I do not see him. It's not that I don't want to talk to him. I really do, but I imagine that he doesn't want to talk to me.

"The result is that I'm called a 'high-hatter' and 'stuck up' and boys say, 'guess she thinks we're not good enough for her,' when underneath it all, I really don't think much of myself.

"There is one boy I met away from home who does not affect me this way, as he thinks I'm rather nice and praises my good qualities, but at home I am disliked for my 'superior attitude'.

"What would you suggest as a good remedy?"

The best way to overcome dread or difficulty is to run to meet it.

The swimmer who plunges in head-first never feels the chill of the water as does the timid bather who edges in inch by inch.... Slamming the door to which a loose tooth is attached and so pulling it out with one quick jerk is far less painful than gradual extraction.

Downing a glass of medicine at one gulp is much to be preferred to sipping.

Go out of your way to meet as many people as you possibly can. Join clubs. Accept every invitation that comes your way. Make a game of seeing whether you can't make at least one new acquaintance every day. Pretend that you are a professional "hostess" and that your job depends on making every one have a good time. Smile at the scrubwoman. Say "good morning" to the elevator operator.

If you meet a rebuff, force yourself to speak to some one else before you have time to think about it. Aviators employ the same psychological principle when they jump into another plane and go up again after a crash.

If you wish help with your problems, write to the author (Copyright, 1930, by The Associated Newspapers).

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

M. MERRYMAN'S voice reminded Sue of gray water as he talked....gray water which no longer had the vibrancy of sunlight or moonlight to give it luster, or the green of grass or white of snow to lend it life. It was dead, quite dead.

"The money has been disappearing in small amounts. Naturally, at first it looked as though it might be the mistake of the companies in checking over their amounts. Then suddenly the sums grew bigger. The firms that were losing out started to check up.... even had the bank count the money and drop it in the vault.... and there wasn't any more doubt about it. I don't know what's been happening. But I'll fight to clear my name. Only it takes money to fight money."

Sue thought of Harry Becker's words....no matter what happened, she was to remember that he understood. What had he meant? And out of the mazed pattern the emerald started to shine with its sinister fire. She could sell the stone now and hand the money to her father to help him! The she remembered that it was in Harry's safety deposit vault at the bank. Sue threw her head higher. It could stay there. She wouldn't ask for it! Harry had seemed to feel that something wrong had happened. Surely he hadn't suspected her father! Could he... She checked the thought, but it came again, running more swiftly to meet her. Could he have thought that she had pawned the ring that trying time in order to help her father? Harry had wanted to be so sure that she was telling him the truth.

Mrs. Merryman was speaking. "Things always come out right in the end. They have a habit of being unpleasant along the way but that isn't bad if you can look for the rainbow. Let's forget all about this. In a few days it will all blow over."

Sue was conscious of a feeling of restraint at the office the next day. It was a very sympathetic restraint but it was there. Mrs. Thornton was at her old desk.

"I'm going to work on for a while, Sue," she said. "It's tiresome to stay at home when I'm so used to being here."

But Sue knew that that wasn't the reason.

"It's because they think I'm too excited over this black-handed trick."

My Neighbor Says--

When making bread and butter pudding, sprinkle each slice of bread and butter with grated coconut instead of currants, and strewn some on the top. This will make a change from the ordinary pudding and will be found very tasty.

Do not scrape a frying pan; it is liable to burn afterward. Instead, rub well with a hard crust of bread and wash in hot water.

Japanned articles should never be washed in hot water as the Japan is likely to wash off. Use luke-warm water and soap.

Steaming is a good way to cook vegetables, as it reduces the loss of nutrients and vitamins. It is also economical because you can cook several different vegetables at a time.

(Copyright, 1930, by The Associated Newspapers) to think straight that they have brought her back," Sue said to herself. She wondered what they would do about Sarah, who was already hired. Would they tell her that there wasn't a job for her?

Sarah herself called a little later to explain that she wouldn't be an office accomplice after all. "Later on, I'm to come. Not just now," she explained. "I'm going job-hunting this morning. I think that maybe I might get on the reception desk at the clinic. Dr. Burton's gone, so I wouldn't mind. I'm going to drop round this morning."

The atmosphere held quality which Sue couldn't define. Friendliness, courtesy, sympathy, all these she found but there was a restraint. So she asked if she could be excused for a little while, put her blue beret over her dark curls and slipped into the big woolly blue coat that was just as dark as her eyes, and started down the street. She didn't care where she went.

The air was cold but some place it had touched a green world for a minute and brought the color of violets and warning sun.

She stopped to glance into a florist's window and gazed at the riot of mad yellow bloom that threw golden rainbows into the street. A voice at her shoulder made her turn. It was June Walton, from Corinne's old high school crowd.

"Oh Sue, I'm sorry your father's been arrested. It's terrible! And I don't believe one word of it."

NEW GUINEA NATIVES LIKE OLD NEWSPAPERS

BUILDING ERA SPRINGS UP AROUND BELGIUM

Brussels.—(P)—"Bleeding" Belgium in 11 years has become "bustling" Belgium. The government's new budget papers show nearly 100,000 houses have been rebuilt since the war, and nearly 270,000 acres of land have been treated to return their fertility. In addition to giving approximately 2,000,000 people to 2,000,000 people, the government has built 140 town halls, 237 churches, 232 schools, 412 other municipal buildings, 9,800 factories, 35,000 miles of highways and 1,800 miles of railways.

RED WING PUCK SQUAD DEFEATS OSHKOSH TEAM

Crowd of Several Hundred Watches Christmas Day Ice Battle

Neenah — The Red Wing hockey team defeated the Oshkosh team Thursday afternoon by a score of 3 and 1 in a fast game at Washington school rink before several hundred spectators. During the game H. Howlett of the Oshkosh team, and Gilbert Krueger of the Neenah team, received injuries which necessitated removing them from the game. The Oshkosh team suffered a head cut in the head from a hockey stick while Krueger was kicked in the head by one of the Oshkosh players. Causing a scalp wound. Two scores were made in the game by "Boots" Marquardt and one by Marty for the winners, and Allen for the losers. Neenah made two points in the first period and nine in the second. Oshkosh's single marker was made in the second period. The last period was scoreless and was the hardest fought of the game.

Exceeding the game Mayor George Sande officially dedicated the new hockey rink which the city has constructed at the rear of the Washington school for use by the hockey team and skaters.

The schedule for Sunday is; Neenah at Oshkosh and Appleton at Fond du Lac. The Appleton-Fond du Lac game scheduled for Thursday afternoon was not played as the Appleton rink has not been completed.

TWIN CITY DEATHS

CARL TEWS

Neenah — Carl Tew, a resident of Neenah for 13 years, died at 7 o'clock Thursday morning from pneumonia at his home on Caroline-st. Mr. Tew was born Jan. 28, 1856, at Milwaukee where he spent his boyhood. Later he lived in the town of Wolf River and in 1902 moved to town of Clayton where he lived until coming to Neenah. He was a member of Trinity Lutheran church. Surviving are the widow and four children, Richard, Theodore, Robert and Miss Fred Tew, all of Neenah, three grandchildren and one brother Albert Tew of Milwaukee.

Readin', Writin' Taught To 2,000,000 In Year

BY VICTOR EUBANK
Khar'kov, Ukraine, U. S. R. — (AP) — Ukraine, greatest and richest state of the soviet union is determined to make every inhabitant read and write.

But it has bread lines' for the hungry poor, characteristic of every city in the country.

A. Scripnick, commissar of education, said that by 1931 there would be not one single illiterate person in the entire country.

This year, Comrade Scripnick said, more than 2,000,000 persons learned to read and write Ukrainian — not Russian. The Ukrainians are jealous of their own language. The soviet government encourages them in maintaining their native tongue. So everybody is happy.

"Before the revolution," Scripnick said, "the percentage of illiterate persons in the Ukraine was around 32. This year the percentage is about 85."

Every youngster of the proper age is in school. The state provides warm clothing and hot lunches for those whose parents cannot afford these essentials.

The Ukraine probably is one of the most prosperous parts of the union. The only sufferers, I was told, are kulaks (rich farmers) and Jews who have not aligned themselves with the present regime.

There are thousands of these latter, who are living on the verge of starvation and just now are one of the problems with which the state government has to contend.

Many of these Jews are kept alive principally by funds they receive from relatives or friends in America.

As former traders and merchants, they are not eligible to the bread and food cards which the peasants and workers receive. Consequently they must buy on the private market where food prices are almost prohibitive.

S. Duvich, vice-president of the council of commissars of the Ukraine and president of the board of trade, said:

"The Jewish problem is one of the greatest we have.

"Right now we are trying to solve it by getting them on collective farms. They are going reluctantly, but even now we have more Jews on collective farms than ever resided in Palestine.

"The problem of the Jews is that they were traders and merchants before the revolution and it is hard for them to change their habits now. And, it goes without saying, we are not making things easy for the former bourgeois."

The Ukraine is the world's great grainery. There has been little trouble in the state grain collections, that part of the harvest the soviet government takes as its tax and exports.

There are some 18,000 tractors on the big farms. Duvich said the farmers are being given goods in return for their grain instead of roubles when they desire it.

Khar'kov was by far the best looking city encountered. The new buildings, large and well-kept parks, spacious air-dromes and race tracks are signs of modernity.

But the bread lines are present in Khar'kov.

MENASHA SOCIETY

Preceded by Christmas caroling, at 11:15, the Eucharist service was given at St. Thomas Episcopal church Wednesday evening. The program by the St. Thomas senior choir featured the service.

The St. Cecilia junior choir made its initial appearance at a church service when it featured the celebration of the Holy Eucharist at St. Thomas Episcopal church Christmas morning. A large congregation attended.

Over 100 youngsters were entertained at the annual Christmas party given by the Menasha lumber and fuel company at Racine and Third-sts Wednesday afternoon. All Menasha children were invited and Santa Claus made a personal appearance to distribute gifts.

Midget Wolgast And Frankie Genaro Fight For Feather Crown

NEW YORKER IS RECOGNIZED AS N. B. A. CHAMP

Philadelphian Rated an 8 to 5 Favorite; Is N. Y. State Titlist

BY EDWARD J. NEIL Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Midget Wolgast, scrappy kid from Philadelphia, will have precedent on his side when he tries in Madison Square Garden tonight to clinch his claims to the flyweight championship in a fifteen round duel with Frankie Genaro, once considered the greatest of the little fellows.

Wolgast, by reason of his conquest of all rivals in an elimination tournament staged here last summer, is the New York State Athletic commission's nominee for the 112 pound crown. Genaro, a sturdy little Italian veteran who lives right here, is recognized almost everywhere but in New York state and Pennsylvania by the National Boxing association as the flyweight champion of the world.

Genaro, busy in foreign and Canadian rings but idle here for the last three years because of his refusal to enter elimination tournaments to decide the flyweight championship, is a far more experienced battler than Young Wolgast. Over a period of ten years he has conquered some of the strongest of the little men and his record boasts a victory over the late Pancho Villa when the little Filipino was the sensation of the midwest.

Wolgast has punched his way to the top in the last two years. He whipped Black Bull, Cuban Negro, in the final of the tourney last summer and has conquered most of the mediocre contemporary flyweight crop with the exception of Genaro. Wolgast is a busy little fellow, very fast and clever, and strongest over the fifteen round title trail. He is an 8 to 5 favorite.

Bagers Return to Practice Saturday; Must Improve Defense

MADISON — With their first three games safely "in the bag," the University of Wisconsin basketball squad is enjoying its first real vacation since September.

Coach Meanwell excused the players, immediately after their game with Missouri Monday night and they will not report to him again until Saturday, when they will put in two days of training before meeting Marquette at the Milwaukee Auditorium, Dec. 30.

The showing of Coach Meanwell's "poor team" to date has been a pleasant surprise to its supporters. Starting with Carroll, which had won the championship of the Wisconsin Intercollegiate conference for four consecutive years and which was undefeated except by Wisconsin, in its 17 games last season, the Badgers have come through handsomely, winning all of their games by comfortable scores and holding their opponents to an average of 11.23 points per game.

Against Carroll, they won, 17-14, and although obviously nervous, which resulted in their missing many "set up" shots, earned by clever passing, they presented a tight defense and ability to control possession of the ball which was most gratifying.

In their second test—the field house dedication game in which they defeated Pennsylvania, 25 to 12—the defense was even better and they began to gain confidence in their offense and to find the loop. The Quakers were off form, however, and presented no real test of Wisconsin's defense.

"On" Against Missouri

Against Missouri Monday night, the Badger midgets were clearly "on." Everything they tried worked. Their offensive plays completely baffled the Tigers and so perfect was their defense that Missouri scored but two field goals, the first coming only after five minutes of the second half had elapsed.

Wisconsin's attack is still below the Meanwell standard, due to the small stature of the players and their consequent inability to get the ball on tip-off plays and on rebounds. Playing the defense they do, however, it seems clear that the Badgers will make it difficult for other fives to score on them and that when they lose, it is likely to be in low score games.

In all their games thus far, Wisconsin's guards and co-opts, Johnny Paul and Ted Chmielewski, the only regulars back this year, have been outstanding, while the work of Doug Nelson, Marvin Steen and Russ Tornowski, has been conspicuous.

ICE IS BAD; STREAKS CANCEL HOCKEY GAME

Because ice conditions on the hockey rink here were not favorable Thursday afternoon, a Fox river valley league game scheduled with Fond du Lac was cancelled by the management of the Appleton Blue Streaks. However, the local rubber chasers asked their necks in a short practice game to entertain fans who happened down to the rink. The league schedule will be resumed next Sunday, weather permitting.

BAN JOHNSON WINS FIGHT TO REGAIN HEALTH

Veteran Baseball Organizer Is Now Considered "Out of the Woods"

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ban Johnson, former president of the American league, apparently won another victory—this time against old man disease.

After 13 weeks in bed, the former czar of baseball was considered "out of the woods" in his fight against diabetes which aggravated a foot infection and threatened for a time to result in the loss of one leg.

Strong of voice and still vitally interested in baseball, Mr. Johnson was host to several friends yesterday in a hospital here where he is convalescing.

"I owe my life to Phil Ball," said Mr. Johnson to the group which included Mr. Ball, head of the St. Louis Browns. "He stepped in and took charge of my case and refused to permit my reputation for the game, in Johnson's opinion would be seriously impaired, but the miracle happened."

Mr. Johnson then unfolded some of his opinions on present day baseball problems, among them the live ball and night baseball. He said he had written George Reach, manufacturer of the official baseball, that unless the amount of rubber in present day baseball were reduced, the game, in Johnson's opinion would be seriously impaired.

Too Much Rubber

"I have satisfied myself by examination of the baseballs in use," he related, "that the amount of rubber in them has been greatly increased from that found necessary in other days when scores were low, home runs were fewer, and there was some skill and strategy required to win a baseball contest."

Unless the rubber is reduced, he said, the ball "will continue to result in meaningless home runs and hurt both infield and outfield play." He said he believed the reaction from the long hitting craze will result soon.

"Night baseball has created a curiosity interest for the time, especially among women; but in my opinion it is not an interest that is of an educational or permanent nature," he said. "Night baseball is not natural. It cannot be permanent. It will never take hold of the major leagues and I do not believe it will long continue as a life-saver for the minor leagues."

Golf, he said, was one cause of the illness in the lower class minor league circles. Rich men who formerly were "angels" to the minor leagues have dropped baseball for golf and country clubs, he said.

JUNIOR INDOOR NET MEET OPENS TODAY

144 Young Players Listed on Draw Sheet; Jacobs Defending Title

New York (AP)—With 144 young players listed on the draw sheet, the national junior indoor tennis championships get under way today in the Seventh regiment armory. The tournament will continue through next week, skipping only Sunday.

The boys' championship, which has drawn 78 entries is scheduled to start tomorrow and continue along with the more important event.

At the top of the junior entry list is William Jacobs of Baltimore, who is defending the title he won on the same courts last year. Jacobs plays his first match against Irving Lindbaum of New York. Richard Downing of Jamaica high school, New York, is placed second to Jacobs on the list of ten seeded players. Downing starts in the first round against C. L. Duval of Groton.

Other players who were given places on the seed list in making up the draw were Mark Hecht of New York, Bernard Friedman of Philadelphia, Kendall H. Cram of Nashville, Tenn., Sidney Seligson of New York, younger brother of the former title holder and intercollegiate champion Robert O. Bacon, Jr., of New York, Emil Schnapp of the University of Michigan, Gilles Verstraeten of New York and S. B. Davenport of Harvard.

Stanford Had One Of West's Best Golf Courses

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS Copyright 1930

PALO ALTO, CALIF.—(CPA)—One of the really great golf courses of the United States may be found on the campus of Stanford University in this beautiful little city. Located in the Santa Clara valley and beneath the serrated peaks of the Santa Cruz mountains it has a natural beauty possessed by few golf courses in North America.

The Stanford course, now one year old, is built on a portion of the old Senator Leland Stanford estate. Its smooth and winding fairways pass the old stables and track where the famous champions of the Stanford stables once were trained; winds up hill and down into tiny valleys and frequently are bisected by a little stream that bubbles noisily.

As a test of golf the course has few equals. From the middle tees it measures 6,648 yards and may be stretched out several hundred additional yards. It abounds in difficult par four holes and its par of 71 never has been equalled. The short holes are of odd yardage and the greens so designed as to demand perfect control and direction.

Play All Year

The greens are of Cocos bent and so frequently in California—and efforts at realizing of putting ability. Both fairways and greens are well watered and even during the dry seasons in Northern California the course always is in fine condition. On this hazy December day it was in splendid condition and R. L. Templeton, the famous Stanford track coach netted himself a neat 78—thereby proving that a track coach has time for golf practice.

With this splendid course and all year round playing conditions, Stanford is almost certain to develop some fine amateur players. The students pay only one dollar per round for the privilege of playing the course and during the scholastic year it is well crowded after class hours. Stanford is making ready to receive young Charles Seaver, of Los Angeles in January and Seaver may be a future amateur champion.

Understand, he went to the semi-finals of the 1930 championship, and he has the makings of a title winner.

Pop Warner, Stanford's veteran football coach, is one who will welcome Seaver's appearance on the Cardinal campus. For Seaver in addition to being a brilliant golfer is a splendid football and basketball player. Weighing better than 190 pounds, he is expected to become the future fullback on the Stanford eleven. He is ranked as one of the best scholastic players California has produced in many years.

Old Pop Smiles

Warner was busy watching the all eastern squad that plays in the Shrine hospital charity game in San Francisco, Jan. 1, when Dink Templeton informed him that Seaver was to enter Stanford. The information made Pop smile for the first time since the Notre Dame-Southern California game.

Several of America's leading professionals including Walter Hagen—took a crack at the Stanford course several weeks ago and par still was hale and hearty when they departed. The professionals rate the course as a harder test than Pebble Beach and the equal of almost any course in the east.

The completion of the golf course gives Stanford one of the finest and most complete athletic plants in the collegiate world. A new women's gymnasium now is in the course of completion and with the magnificent football stadium, baseball tennis, hockey, and soccer fields and the big swimming pool already in operation Stanford students want for nothing in the way of recreative facilities.

ROSE BOWL TEAMS REST CHRISTMAS

Washington State, Alabama Resume Grind Today For Big Game

Pasadena, Cal.—(AP)—After an afternoon and night of rest, the Rose tournament's football teams, Washington State and Alabama, prepared today for further physical and mental training.

The two teams will meet on the gridiron New Year's day; Alabama, pride of the south, and Washington State, Pacific coast champions.

Coach Wallace Wade daily is putting his Crimson tide through about two hours of fundamentals and running signals. He is paying little attention to new plays, concentrating on conditioning the players.

Coach Orrin "Babe" Hollingery expected today to give his boys a hard workout. He said he felt the team was coming along rapidly and needed only a few more hard sessions. Next week, he said, he will start tapering down on the rigid training.

The fact Alabama outweighs the Washington Cougars bothers Hollingery not at all.

"We were outweighed many pounds per man in almost every game this season, but it did not affect the outcome of a single one of the contests," he said.

Coach Wade has not as yet decided on his line, and today reiterated his statement he probably will not decide for several days.

LEGION PLANNING AMATEUR FIGHT CARD FOR JAN. 8

BADGER HOCKEY TEAM LOSES TO CANADIANS

Port Frances, Ont.—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin hockey team was defeated here in a Christmas afternoon hockey game by the Port Frances Tigers, 2 to 1. "Swede" Swidersky, Badger defense man, scored the visitors' single counter in the second period. But one penalty was called during the hot game. It was against a Fort player.

CO. D CAGERS WIN FROM MERCHANTS, 18-17

Basketballers representing Co. D, 127th Infantry, defeated the Little Chute Merchants in a game staged Tuesday evening. The count was 18 and 17, the game being a close battle throughout.

DeBruin was the scoring ace for the Merchants with three field goals. Batters of the guards led his team with two field goals and two free throws.

Members of the Merchant team were R. Versteegen, Van Dyke, and Burstecker, forwards; DeBruin, center; Van Der Velden and Langdyke, guards; Bauer, Helms and Chiswick were forwards for the winners. King, Zuehlke and Schneider, guards; Radtke jumped center.

CHICAGO CARDS WIN FROM SOUTHWEST TEAM

Fort Worth, Tex.—(AP)—Led by Ernie Nevers, former Pacific coast all-American fullback, the Chicago Cardinals, professionals, defeated a team of former Southwest conference stars 20 to 0 here yesterday.

MIDWEST, SOUTHWEST GRID STARS AT DALLAS

Dallas, Tex.—(AP)—Football stars were in order here today for the midwest and southwest football stars matched in the Dixie classic, a charity contest, New Year's day.

The midwest players, save for one man, arrived yesterday and were drilled in offensive plays by Robert Zuppke, coach at the University of Illinois. Don and Rider, Michigan State tackle, meant the train the others caught, but was expected to follow soon.

Arrival of the southwest representatives, with a workout under direction of Coaches Morley Jennings of Baylor university and Fred Thomsen of Arkansas, was set for today.

Zuppke expressed satisfaction at the showing of his pupils and forecast an interesting game. He used two full teams.

BLACK CREEK QUINTET WINS FROM SHOES, 37-31

Black Creek cagers rallied in the second half in a recent game with the Shorty's Shoes team of Little Chute and copped 37 to 31. The score at the end of the first half was 16 and 14 in favor of Little Chute.

Minor Sports Program At U. W. Is Curtailed

MADISON—Confronted by an unexpected decrease in football receipts last fall, the coaches of spring sports at the University of Wisconsin are giving a splendid example of teamwork and cooperation in cutting their expenditures to meet the situation.

Wisconsin will not follow the example of those universities which have decided to cut off certain minor sports to meet the same situation. Instead, the Badgers will "carry on" in all lines of athletics but each department will reduce its expenses.

By substituting short for long trips, purchasing less equipment, making older supplies serve another season and similar methods of economy, it is expected that they will collectively save $10,000 this spring. A similar policy of retrenchment is expected in the fall, when football and cross country have their seasons.

In baseball, Coach Guy S. Lowman will save something over $1,000 by shortening Wisconsin's southern training trip and by reduced expenditures for supplies. Coach Tom Jones of the track team will omit the Texas relay trip and has arranged a less expensive dual meet schedule, so that track will be able to save another $1,000. Coach Joe Steinmeyer has arranged a shorter schedule for his swimming team and this will save $1,000.

Total Cut $10,000

Hockey, under its new coach, E. A. (Spike) Carlson, will do its bit and though operating on a similar budget, will get along on $1,200 less than planned. The gymnasium and wrestling teams, both of which have worked on modest allowances, will save $1,000 and $500, respectively. The same policy in crew, tennis and golf, and further economies in administration and construction will make the total cut about $10,000.

Essentially, little could make no money in the little old gymnasium, with its 2,200 seating capacity, will show a neat profit this season. In the new field house, in spite of this, however, Coach Meanwell is also reducing expenditures.

These savings are considered the more worth of commendation because, after drawing what was considered a reasonable budget, Director Little was required by the athletic council to reduce his requests by $25,000, which he did last spring. Wisconsin will finance its athletics this year for $35,000 less than the amount which originally seemed essential. Mr. Little pointed out that this is being done to meet an exceptional emergency and could not be expected as a permanent arrangement.

Association Also Blames Dry Laws for Increase in Federal Prisoners

Washington — (P)—Upon the dry laws the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment today heaped the blame for all federal court congestion and for the entire increase in the number of federal prisoners since 1920.

A statistical pamphlet released by the association estimated the number of prohibition prisoners now in federal, state and county penal institutions at 50,000. It contended that on and penitentiary statistics did not give a measure of the crime problem for "only a small proportion of those convicted are given felony sentences."

It termed "an example of misinformation" an assertion made last year by President Hoover that only a small proportion of felony cases would be attributed to the eighteenth amendment. For it added, "83 per cent of the prohibition violators sentenced in federal courts are misdemeanors and not felons."

"Prohibition cases now account for two-thirds of all criminal cases in the federal courts," said the association, adding the total last year was 56,455. The increase in civil cases with the United States participating, since 1920 was set at 347 per cent, but excluding prohibition actions the gain was counted as only 111 per cent.

FRIENDSHIP COURTS SOVIET EXPERIMENT

New Legal Branch will be Tried in Moscow Factory District

Moscow — (P)—"Friendship courts" are the newest legal experiment of the Soviet government. These courts are to be tried in factories of the Moscow district. They will not exercise the power of fining and imprisoning "offenders" but will be for the purpose of disciplining and reforming workers who are addicted to carelessness, inebriation, loafing and other such habits.

The economic authorities, in their battle to bring to a successful conclusion the famous five-year industrialization plan, have determined that all waste effort shall be eliminated as far as possible. Most of this waste, they have found, is due to the laxity of the undisciplined workers themselves.

FOUR FAMILIES WIN RURAL MAIL SERVICE

Schneider Secures Order Extending Delivery to Their Doors

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — Just before returning home for the holidays, Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton got a fine "Christmas present" for four families near Appleton.

They won't get it until Jan. 16, but it will last a long time.

After a long series of efforts, he finally got the Post Office Department to order the extension of a rural mail delivery route out of Appleton to include service to the families of John and William McCarthy, William Schneider (no relative of the congressman), and John Bauer.

When rural routes were consolidated to save money last year, these families, all living within a fifth of a mile of one another, were deprived of service direct to their homes. The carrier went seven-tenths of a mile down the road on which they lived, but did not make the other half-mile along this road.

The Appleton post office insisted that this half-mile of road was in bad condition, and that the carrier should not be required to travel over it to serve these four families. Rep. Schneider personally inspected the road last fall, found it in good condition, presented the facts to the Post Office Department, and won an order that the service be extended effective Jan. 16.

Nation's Chiefs Believe Maxim That Youth Rules

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

Washington — (P)— The ages of men who make and interpret the nation's laws provide a striking rebuttal to the contention that man reaches the zenith of his ability in the forties and begins to "slip" in the fifties.

Gray-haired maturity is the rule and "snappy youth" the exception in high administrative, legislative and judicial positions in Washington.

President Hoover, 56, is three years younger than the average member of his cabinet. Secretary Mellon, dean of administrative officials, is 55.

Patrick J. Hurley, "juvenile" member of the cabinet, is 47. He is the only one of the President's official family under 50.

The average age of senate members is 57. Vice President Curtis, president of the senate, is 70. Senator Gillett of Massachusetts is retiring at 73.

The "boy senators" are LaFollette of Wisconsin, who is 35, and Nye of North Dakota, who is 37.

The leaders of both parties and of the progressive bloc in the senate are all of the "veteran" class. Watson of Indiana is 68. McNary of Oregon is 58. Robinson of Arkansas is 58 and Walsh of Montana is 71. Borah of Idaho is 65 and Norris of Nebraska is 69.

It is to the supreme court, however, that champions of the sagacity of age turn for their most formidable evidence. The average age of the nine justices is 68.

Patriarch of official Washington is the virile and brilliant-minded Oliver Wendell Holmes, who will be 90 in March. Chief Justice Hughes is 68. The youngest man on the supreme bench is Owen Roberts, who is 55.

COLD AND HEAT HIT MIDWEST DURING YEAR

Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes Region Suffer Most From Nature

Chicago — (P) — The destroying forces of nature in 1930 struck hardest at the broad valley of the Mississippi and Great Lakes.

Killing heat and cold waves battered the midwest tier of states, claiming many human lives. The nation's worst drought scared the land. Crop and property losses approximated a billion dollars. Livestock succumbed to lack of water and green pastures. Fires crackled across thirsty timber lands in upper Michigan and Wisconsin.

One hundred twenty persons were killed by tornadoes and windstorms that streaked sporadically northward from Texas to Minnesota. Three were drowned in floods.

Rains Flood States

Lake Michigan swallowed ten lives in two ship disasters.

The year was but two weeks old when king cold blew down from the northland tundra. The whole nation shivered, even Dixie, but the midwest and northwest tingled most. Thermometers skidded down to 45 below on Jan. 22 in Hatfield, Wis., readings of 35 and 40 below were common. Fifteen deaths from exposure were reported. Luckily for communication lines, there was little snow.

Freak rains flooded southern Indiana and Illinois. The banks of the Wabash were awash before feeder streams could freeze over. Dozens of families were left homeless in weather 20 degrees below. Planes dropped bags of food and clothing to marooned settlements. One man was drowned. Army engineers placed the damage at nearly $7,000,000.

With the first week of spring came Chicago's greatest snowstorm. For two days—March 25 and 26—the sky was solid white. The fall averaged 19.2 inches and piled into man-high drifts over all the city. Hundreds of thousands of grownups and children were snowbound from offices and schools. Thousands of automobiles were abandoned in the streets. For hours there was no transportation. Several millions were spent to clear streets and free surfaces and elevated lines.

Then came the thaw—overnight. Chicago wallowed about on the 28th through an estimated two billion tons of slush.

April, May and June were unusually hot and dry months—the precursor of a disastrous summer. The nation first awoke to the seriousness of the drought with the heat wave of July 18 and 19.

The valley states shimmered. For three weeks the air boiled. Wells and streams dried up. Towns shipped in their water; farmers hauled it for miles to save livestock. Pastures burned up. The department of agriculture reported an 800,000,000 bushel loss to the corn crop. Late wheat was seriously damaged. Truck farmers suffered.

Heat Wave Follows

Old Sol reached his zenith on Aug. 4. Four towns in Kansas roasted at 114. Nebraska reported 113. Over southern Indiana and Illinois and in Missouri the thermometer stood 110 for more than a week. A farmer near Centralia, Ill., reported that eggs hatched after a brood hen left her nest.

The Atlantic slopes of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina were hard hit. The Mississippi shivered to the danger point for navigation.

Timber and brush in the northland were parched. Hundreds of fires flamed over the upper Michigan peninsula and spread into Wisconsin. Only favorable winds halted widespread destruction. The Wisconsin conservation commission said it was the greatest potential fire danger in several decades.

Tornadoes howled frequently over the area. There were 22 cyclonic disturbances in Kansas alone, greatest number on record. Wisconsin had 14. Thirty-three persons were killed in upset buildings at Bethany, Okla., more than 40 dead was the Texas tornado toll. Minnesota, Missouri and Nebraska were windswept.

Late in November, zero zipped down again from the north country, again the whole nation suffered, the midwest most. Blizzards disoriented an unseasonably late warmth. Many northwest communities were cut off by heavy snows.

The first snow was on Nov. 24—a blizzard. This, to the superstitious meant 24 blizzards during the winter.

FLASHES OF LIFE

Chicago—Golfers whom John D. Rockefeller encountered Christmas have dimes; policemen found by his daughter, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, on Lake Shore dr., have $5 gold pieces.

West Orange, N. J.—After intensive holiday study Thomas A. Edison perhaps has some ideas for new inventions. He had a dinner of crack-crack milk pie with the grand children a bit then devoted himself to lengthy perusal of technical publications.

New York—Mrs. Babe Ruth evidently wouldn't mind if Babe got away soon for some hunting. Gazing wistfully at a nifty tree he fixed in the house for the kiddies, he sighed: "If we only had an air rifle now we could go into the other room behind the piano and neatly pick those glass balls off the tree." And up spoke Mrs. Ruth: "There will be no shooting around the house."

Washington—Employees of the White House have ash trays and jewelry cases made of wood taken from the White House when it was remodelled two years ago. Accompanying each gift was a bit of free verse by Mrs. Hoover telling how a pine tree on the hills of Maryland became a portion of the storied structure and how the gifts, via waste basket and fire, eventually will go, free smoke before a free wind, to touch again the hills of Maryland.

They'll Fight Each Other to Finish

Governor Huey P. Long, Louisiana's senator-elect, is shown here (right) with Lieutenant Governor Paul N. Cyr (in circle) his arch political enemy, who is keeping him out of the United States Senate. "I'm getting a little too fat," says Governor-Senator Long, "but I'll soon take it off working on my big program for the development of Louisiana."

ZEPPELIN MAKES 104 FLIGHTS FOR RECORD IN 1930

Official Believes Ocean Flights Could Be Put on Paying Basis

Friedrichshafen, Germany — (P) — Resting in a big shed for the winter, Germany's globe-encircling Graf Zeppelin can look back on 1930 as its best and most profitable passenger year to date.

Four thousand and sixty-three passengers were carried during the season's 104 flights, and almost a million pieces of mail, distributed over an aggregate distance flown of 71,250 miles.

The income from these flights was sufficient to pay the officers and crew, the motor-fuel bills, insurance and depreciation.

Had the Graf confined itself to comparatively short cruises of 1,000 miles or so, the showing would have been even better, for the extra costs for mooring and refueling preparations on the South American flight to not enter into the less spectacular European trips.

Mooring Masts Expensive

Even the transatlantic flights of the Zeppelin could be put on a commercial, paying basis, estimates Capt. Ernst Lehmann of the Zeppelin company, if proper mooring facilities and refueling stations were regularly established.

Equipping a transatlantic Zeppelin line with four or five ships and proper mooring masts and other landing facilities would cost, he calculates, not more than $20,000,000.

With such a line in operation the cost per flight from Spain or Portugal to Brazil would average, everything included, about $28,000. Carrying 40 passengers at $750 each would bring in $30,000 and freight and mail could be expected to make up the other $5,000 and add a reasonable profit.

To Be Overhauled

Since its maiden flight in September, 1929, the Graf has cruised an aggregate of nearly 150,000 miles and carried 6,273 passengers and 2,200,000 pieces of mail and freight.

How many more miles may be expected it will be revealed to some extent during the extensive overhauling of the ship this winter.

The Graf's 1931 flying program still is undetermined. A flight to the North Pole is considered probable, provided the new year brings a reasonable improvement in general business conditions.

Blood Transfusions Made Possible By Landsteiner

New York — (P) — Thousands of persons literally owe their lives to Dr. Karl Landsteiner, winner of the 1930 Nobel prize in medicine.

Blood transfusion, now a common means of saving the lives of persons weakened by loss of blood or anemia, was made possible by his discovery that there are four major types of human blood.

Sufferers from infantile paralysis have been aided by Dr. Landsteiner's experiments with monkeys. He was the first to find that these animals could be infected with the disease.

This led to the discovery that the serum of infantile paralysis convalescents might be used as a protective or checking agency in patients who had the disease in its incipient stages.

Dr. Landsteiner has been studying the human blood for 30 years. His discoveries have ranged from a clue to the causes of immunity against disease to enabling police detectives to identify blood stains.

Dr. Landsteiner, a tall, slender man, nervous and modest, was born in Vienna 82 years ago and worked in Europe until 1922, but he speaks English with only a slight accent.

Science is both his work and his play. He has no recreation. He is busy day and night in his laboratory at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and lives close to the Institute so as not to waste time traveling back and forth. In the summer he transfers his activities to a home on the Massachusetts coast.

Adelaide, Australia — (P) — Pledged to borrow no more money from abroad, South Australia is faced with the problem of keeping its unemployed men and their families.

Unemployment has increased at a rate of 1,000 a week. One in every 12 men in the state is out of work.

Wages of officials have been drastically reduced in an effort to prevent bankruptcy. The state already has been greatly assisted by funds from the federal treasury.

GRUDGE BATTLE KEEPS LONG OUT OF SENATE SEAT

Won't Relinquish Governorship of Louisiana Until 1932

Baton Rouge, La.—A seat in the United States Senate is a very fine thing, but a good fight is an old grudge. That explains why Governor Huey P. Long is going to wait until his present term expires in 1932 before he goes to Washington to begin the term as senator to which the voters elevated him at the recent election.

Senator Joseph E. Ransdell's place in the Senate becomes vacant next March and Governor Long is technically due to succeed him then. But Governor Long is not going to go. He is going to stay here and finish out his term as governor and if that grieves Lieutenant Governor Paul N. Cyr there is no help for it.

Lieutenant Governor Cyr draws cards in the situation for two reasons: first, because he would become governor if Long resigned before his term expired; second, because he and Long are the most devoted pair of enemies this state has had in along long time.

Murder Trial Parted Them

Long and Cyr used to be good friends—very good friends, so intimate that Cyr, who is huge and muscular, used to threaten to whip people who had offended his friend Long. But that was some time ago.

By a freak of chance, a murder trial served as the rock on which their friendship was wrecked. Ever since then they have been after each other's windpipes, politically speaking.

Governor Long doesn't mention this enmity in formally announcing his decision to stay here. He says: "My work in rebuilding Louisiana—eradicating illiteracy, reviving our domestic and foreign commerce, paving our highways, restoring the finances of our cities, together with the work I am helping to do for the Mississippi valley states, is worth more to the nation than anything I might do in the Senate before May, 1932. By reason of this fact some of my Republican side will, I am sure, accord me the right of a pair, at least on the vote to organize the Senate, until May, 1932. Our good old state of Louisiana is just now getting its place in the sun. It will be the garden spot of the western hemisphere in 15 months. I cannot leave this work."

However, local politicians recall that Long has often announced that he would never leave the state for as much as five minutes to give Cyr the chance of being governor.

"Paul Cyr will never be governor of Louisiana one split second during my term of office," he has said, over and over again. And he has proved that he meant it.

Dared Storm in Plane

Once Governor Long was flying across the state in an airplane. A storm came up and the pilot circled to avoid it. Long noticed that the circle was going to carry them across the state line for a few minutes. He ordered the pilot to fly right through the storm. The pilot obeyed—and Long escaped the possibility of being forced down outside the state and having Lieutenant Governor Cyr take charge during his absence.

Long recently refused to attend the dedication of the great Mississippi river bridge, connecting Louisiana and Mississippi at Vicksburg, because the program provided that he would have to cross the bridge and stand in Mississippi for five or ten minutes. No telling what Cyr might do in ten minutes as acting governor!

The most recent complication arose when Governor Long was urged to attend the Mississippi valley flood control meeting in St. Louis on Thanksgiving week. They faced each other across the table, Long and Cyr, at a meeting of the Louisiana State Board of Liquidation, as the St. Louis trip was being discussed.

Long Takes No Chances

"All right," said Lieutenant Governor Cyr, "let's go to St. Louis together."

"Fine," said Senator-Governor Long. "And I think it would be best if we bunked together. We don't want to get out of each other's sight."

All Louisiana chuckled at the picture of these two arch-enemies at a hotel room bed-mates. But the trip was called off; Long decided not to go.

There are reasons for Long's objection to leaving the state. Long has built up a strong political machine, with officeholders appointed by him in the key positions. It has been freely predicted that Cyr's first act as governor, or as acting governor, would be to oust every one of these people and replace them with his own men.

On top of this is the fact that Louisiana has recently voted $100,000,000 in bond issues for public improvements, including a $50,000,000 state capitol. Naturally, the governor who has the spending of this huge sum can consolidate his political power beyond cavil and Long has not the faintest intention of moving off to Washington just when this program is getting under way and letting his enemy Cyr take the reins.

Once Warm Friends

The two men used to be warm friends. They campaigned together. In the race for governor, Cyr carried his section of southern Louisiana for Long and Long carried his section, in the northern part of the state, for Cyr.

Once, in a hot campaign, Long tangled with a bitter enemy, ex-Governor Jared Y. Sanders, in a New Orleans hotel lobby. The two fought and Long finished with a section of Sanders' sleeve in his hand, torn off as he parried a blow. Cyr met him and dashed down to the lobby, vowing that he would pulverize anybody who made a pass "at my friend Huey."

Political leaders managed to calm him down before he encountered Sanders. The incident was typical of the intense friendship between the two men.

Then came their break over a famous murder case. In 1927 Dr. Thomas E. Dreher and Mrs. Ada LeBoeuf were convicted of killing James LeBoeuf, the woman's husband and were sentenced to hang. Cyr, like many others, believed that James Beadle, Dr. Dreher's handy man, was really the sole guilty party. Beadle had turned state's evidence against

Out-talked Men

A woman can out-talk a man—and attractive Clara Critchfield, above, is living proof of it. She is the first girl who ever has won the annual oratorical contest for freshmen students at George Washington University, Washington. Her home is in the capital, too, where oratory abounds.

As a member of the state pardon board Cyr fought hard to save the condemned pair and the board finally recommended a commutation to life sentence.

Long over-ruled this recommendation and Dr. Dreher and Mrs. LeBoeuf were hanged. Cyr issued a statement branding the execution as "a legal murder." Efforts to settle the quarrel failed and when Long ran for the Senate Cyr fought him vigorously.

Dared Long to Say It

Opening his campaign in his own part of the state, Long made a bitter attack on Cyr. When he came into Cyr's territory, the muscular Cyr announced publicly that he would make Long jump through a window if he repeated his remarks in his—Cyr's presence; and then Cyr took a front seat in the first audience that Long addressed. Long's language that night was greatly modified.

Nevertheless, Cyr's fight was an utter failure. In his race for the Democratic Senate nomination—which is equivalent to election in Louisiana—Long carried his congressional district and even Cyr's home town of Jeanerette, by a big majority. During the campaign Cyr announced that if Long was elected to the Senate and took seat and he, Cyr, became governor he would make a clean sweep of Long officeholders. Long retorted by saying, "You'll never get chance to sweep anything."

Right now the governor is keeping that promise. He will leave the state until his term expires. The Senate will have to along without him until 1932.

Have You Tried Voecks Bros. Prize Beef?

If not there's a treat in store for you with your first order of this Fancy Prize Beef. This beef has been Inspected, Graded, and Stamped by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. This denotes the highest quality of Prime Beef (the "pick" of all the beef raised in the U. S.)

We suggest you try some of this extra fancy beef this weekend or for your New Year's Dinner. This exceptionally fine beef naturally costs a few cents more than ordinary beef, but you are more than repaid by its tender, juicy, healthful quality and its minimum of waste.

CAROLERS VISIT HOMES OF SHUT-INS

Sing Christmas Songs for Persons Unable to Attend Services

New London — Following their annual custom, members of the Junior Waltham league, assisted by the Rev. Walter Pankov, pastor of Emanuel Lutheran church, visited homes of the shut-ins of the church on Christmas day to sing Christmas carols. The young people were taken in cars and spent a short period in each home.

A vesper service by the children of the congregational church was a feature of Wednesday afternoon.

KONJOLA WINS OVER NEURITIS

Eighteen Years of Suffering Banished in a Few Weeks Through Power of Famed Medicine

MRS. MARIE BOESE

"I suffered from constipation for eighteen years," said Mrs. Marie Boese, 1410 Fifty Seventh street, Kenosha. "During all this time I was subject to frightful headaches and my liver was enlarged. Backaches were frequent and night risings disturbed my sleep. I bloated and belched after meals and was a sufferer from heartburn. Neuritis attacked my arms, knees and limbs and the pains were frightful."

"Konjola improved my condition from the very first. My bowels are more regular and my liver is in good order. Backache trouble has been corrected and I no longer rise at night. My stomach is in excellent condition and I no longerloat after meals. I am now entirely free from the pains of neuritis."

The records of Konjola contain thousands of such instances. Try Konjola today.

Konjola is sold in Appleton, Wis., at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

STICKERS

If you start at the right square and move from one square to another, either horizontally, diagonally or vertically, you will spell out a word of twelve letters. Each square must be used but once and you must not skip or jump a square.

(The correct answer will be printed in tomorrow's paper.)

Yesterday's Stickler Solved

The above diagram shows how the man nailed up half of a square window four feet high and four feet wide and still had a square window four feet high and four feet wide. The shaded part indicates the portion nailed up.

ATTEND FUNERAL OF FORMER LEEMAN WOMAN

Leeman — Word has been received here of the sudden death of Mrs. George Fuller of Townsend. The Fuller family were residents of Leeman and vicinity for many years. Those from here who attended the funeral at Townsend Wednesday are: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leeman and Mrs. and Mrs. Laurel Canner, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. William Spaulding.

Ethel, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thompson is ill with pneumonia.

A wolf was shot last Sunday near Nels Nelson farm by Lester Boman. Several hunters have been on the wolf's trail for two weeks.

Various groups presented numbers, one of particular significance and beauty being that presented by the primary department in which children in costume depicted the Christmas story. The annual Christmas program of the Methodist Episcopal and Emanuel Lutheran churches were presented on Wednesday evening. A midnight service in which a choir of young people sang was presented at St. John's Episcopal church. During the hour an altar prayer book was formally dedicated the service being in memory of Mrs. Hattie Werner. At the Most Precious Blood church there were special masses.

75 FAMILIES GET BASKETS OF YULE FOOD

Community Charity Fund Made Available for Small Loans

Kaukauna—About 75 needy families received Christmas baskets Wednesday afternoon. The baskets contained foodstuffs and toys for families with small children. The committee in charge of selecting the families to be helped was composed of Mrs. Anton Reith, Mrs. W. R. Harwood, Miss Cell Flynn, city nurse, and R. H. McCarty chief of police. Money for the baskets was taken from the community poor fund. The toys were donated by various organizations that collected them. Each year baskets are given to the poor families of the city.

Money is raised through the annual Legion Charity ball held during the latter part of November under the auspices of the Kaukauna post. This money is put in the community fund and is used at the direction of a special committee appointed each year.

There is about $400 left in the fund, it is reported. This money will be loaned to local people in temporary need. A plan has been devised whereby any responsible persons needing financial help can borrow $25 from the fund.

Social Items

Kaukauna—Installation of officers of the Rose Rebekah lodge will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 6, Odd Fellow hall. New officers will be Josephine Alger, noble grand; M. Thyrion, vice grand; Mrs. Albert Warner, treasurer; Alice Ruppert, financial secretary and Mrs. B. Mooney, recording secretary.

Newly elected officers of the Modern Woodmen of America, camp No. 1518, will be installed at a meeting in Odd Fellow hall on Wednesday, Jan. 21.

Mrs. James McMorow entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner Thursday evening at her home on Wisconsin-ave for a group of relatives and friends.

The next meeting of the Kaukauna Woman's club will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 6. Hostesses will be Mesdames Haas, Look, McGrath, Ots, Martens, Wolf and Miss Cell Flynn.

BAKERS TAKE THREE GAMES FROM BANKIERS

Kaukauna—Kaukauna's Bakers won three games from the Bankers in the City Bowling league on the Hingeborg alleys. Fargo won two out of three from Combined Loos; Electric Department won one and lost two to the Engineers and the Lumbermen won two out of three from Bayorgson's. Scores:
Bankers 795 856 850—2512
Kaukauna 911 985 948—2844
Electric 1025 862 949—2836
Engineers 1002 1006 899—3007
Fargo 963 909 1058—2930
Com. Loos 835 938 935—2742
Lumbermen 902 901 914—2717
Bayorgson's 846 974 861—2681

SPECIAL SERVICES ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Kaukauna—Kaukauna churches held special Christmas services on Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, all of which were well attended. The Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, Immanuel Reformed church and Brokaw Memorial Methodist Episcopal churches held programs on Christmas eve and on Christmas morning while the other churches held special services on Christmas morning.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS
Kaukauna—Milton Metz of Milwaukee is visiting his parents here. Miss Florence Coenen visited her parents at DePere on Christmas day. Robert McCarty of Milwaukee is visiting relatives here.

Lester Black of Chicago is spending the week here with relatives and friends.

William Baier visited relatives in Oshkosh on Christmas.

Edward McMorow of Iron Mountain, Mich., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McMorow.

Stanley McCarty of Milwaukee is visiting relatives here.

The condition of Ray Paschen, confined in St. Elizabeth hospital, is reported to be improved.

CHICKEN COOP BURNS
Kaukauna—The fire department was called out about 10:30 Wednesday morning to the home of William Wynyard on Draper-st to extinguish a fire in a chicken coop. It was put out with little damage.

AVIATION CABLE CODE
Washington—The growth of aviation has made necessary the compilation of an aviation cable code with which to economize in sending messages to foreign countries. The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce has announced such a code, known as Avico. It contains about 30,000 words and phrases, including listing of manufacturers, specifications of planes and motors, parts and parts assemblies, installations and so forth.

Sir Julien Cahn has presented to Nottingham, England, the Byron Rooms at Newstead Abbey, a gift which includes 20 acres of land and two lakes.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"Oh, let's forget it, Dad—it's a darn nice present anyhow, and I'll probably get used to the color."

KAUKAUNA QUIET OVER HOLIDAYS

Kaukauna—No accidents or arrests were reported over Christmas by local police. A report that the tip of a blue spruce tree at the home of C. W. Stribley on Wisconsin-ave was cut off by someone for a Christmas tree was investigated and it was found that the tip was cut off two years ago when the owner was in the south.

SING CHRISTMAS CAROLS

Kaukauna—Members of the Kaukauna Rotary club held a regular meeting Wednesday noon at the Hotel Kaukauna. Following the regular luncheon the Rotarians sang Christmas carols.

HIGH SCHOOL CAGERS PLAY PRACTICE GAMES

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school cagers will go to Green Bay Saturday afternoon for a practice game with West Green Bay high school basketball team. The team also will play a few practice games with Appleton high school during the Christmas vacation. Regular practices are being held during the short vacation.

POSTPONE BOWLING

Kaukauna—The regular weekly match games of the Legion Bowling league to be rolled on the Hingeborg alleys this Friday evening have been postponed on account of Christmas week. The schedule of games will be resumed on Friday, Jan. 2.

ANCIENT CHURCH, LONG ABANDONED, IS BEING RAZED

Episcopal Congregation Abandoned Building Twenty Years Ago

Kaukauna—One of Kaukauna's oldest churches, which has not been in use for years, is being torn down. The church was built 35 or 40 years ago at the corner of Quinney-ave and Dixon-st in what was at the time the town of Ledyard by a group belonging to the Episcopal faith.

The lot on which the church stands was not registered in the city books in 1893, according to Louis Wolf, city clerk. For the last twenty years the church has not been used and it deteriorated until it became an eyesore. It recently was sold by George L. Smith to Joseph Mertes, who is razing the building.

After giving service for about 15 years the congregation finally abandoned the building because a number of the families supporting it moved from the city. There are only a few persons still living in Kaukauna who were members of the church.

After it was vacated the windows were broken by children and it was boarded up. It stood for almost 20 years without being used. Services at one time were conducted by a minister who came from Appleton.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
"CAPRICORN"

If December 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m. The adverse period is from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

The astrological indications on December 27th point to a day of negative results and a depressed condition of mind. It is advisable to keep to routine work and not attempt to branch out in any fresh field of endeavor. After sunset optimism will replace pessimism and the outlook will be cheerful.

Children born on this December 27 will be of affectionate natures, and, as they grow into adulthood they will acquire ambition, and an earnest desire to accomplish something worth while. They will not be successful at school, but promise to attain much in after years.

You were born under favorable auspices. Endowed with more than average intelligence, gifted with quick perception, and surrounded by a good environment, you had it in you to accomplish much. The fact that you today are still only on the threshold of success is attributable to indecision of character. You dally with all issues, and blow hot and cold. Anything you have done has been through circumstances beyond your control, and not of your own election.

Your disposition is a good one. You are cheerful, and, withal, modest. You never claim to be anything other than what you are, and realizing your limitations, you never attempt to widen your horizon. Your habits—and you are regular. Your thoughts are all inspired by a desire to be generous and tolerant. You speculate very much on the mysteries of life—without, of course, solving any of their problems—and after all your meditation, you cannot make up your mind to believe or disbelieve.

You are very straightforward, and a kindly candor characterizes your utterances and consideration for others marks your actions. In the life of the home, you will never be the leader. You, probably, will be led, as

SPREAD CHRISTMAS JOYS OVER WEEK, IS ADVICE

Madison—For the good of the children, it is better to spread the joys of Christmas over an entire week than try to center it all in a single day. Children who eat too much candy can create more disturbances in the household than any other single rumpus outside of a real sickness.

The State Medical Society of Wisconsin in its weekly bulletin today declares that the mother who gives more substantial attention to children and less things to eat will have more healthy children in the household. Christmas is the day when everyone thinks of the children because of the joy of the little Christ child.

"Christmas time will be a happier time if the excitement is not worked up to a pitch where the impressionable child will have a nervous reaction which may last for weeks," declares the bulletin. "A good play outdoors on Christmas day is even more essential on December 23th than any other day of the year. Get out into the open air with them—play and run and make it a child's day."

"Healthy exercise in the fresh air and not too much indigestible food on this one day will make the day after Christmas, and the days to follow, happier ones for your children."

Home

During The Holiday Season

when all the family is gathered around the fireplace, one actually realizes the value of HOME. Now that the children have returned from the schools, and the grandchildren are also at home, even though it is for a few days, one cannot help but feel the real spirit of HOME.

HOME should mean as much to us at all times. There are certain pieces of furniture that you would not part with because of a gift or through heritage they mean a great deal to us.

On the other hand a new piece of furniture added here and there makes a house a HOME. First Furnish Your Home—"It tells what you are."

Christmas Money

May we suggest that you put your Christmas money into a lasting gift, one of furniture? A gift that the whole family can enjoy. We have a good selection and can give prompt delivery on your choice.

WILD BEAUTY

by MATEEL HOWE FARNHAM

SYNOPSIS: When Fanny Freiburg marries David Frost she becomes at once the family storm-center. David's mother is the acknowledged head of the allied Frost and Brownbeck families, aristocrats of Cloughbarre, Pennsylvania. Fanny's poverty and vivacious personality condemn her in the eyes of her mother-in-law. David resigns from his uncle's bank and moves his wife to a home of their own so that Fanny may be free of Mrs. Frost's enmity. A daughter, Sheila, is born to them. Fanny discovers that Bob Daniels, soon to go overseas in the World War, is in love with her, although he is already married to David's rich cousin, Leila. David suddenly loses his job. Suspecting pressure is being brought by his mother to force him to return to live with her and to work in the bank, he prepares to move to the West.

CHAPTER 10

A DREAM IS SHATTERED

DAVID had obtained an offer of the superintendency of a small terra cotta plant just outside Seattle provided he arrived in two weeks' time.

"We can easily be ready to start in a week--easily," Fanny assured him.

"We can if we stick to business," said David. "But if you start accepting invitations to farewell parties you'll be here all summer. It's a choice between parties and me!"

"I'll choose you," answered Fanny happily.

On the last day David left the house at 11 promising to get his lunch downtown. He was scarcely out of sight when Florence Kilrich walked in.

"Go and dress yourself," she ordered. "I'm going to take you out to the Country Club for luncheon."

"Oh, Florence what an angel you are to want me, but I can't possibly."

"What? Everything's packed?"

"I know, but I have to go after milk for Sheila. There isn't a thing left for her lunch. Anyway, I couldn't leave her."

"Mrs. Collins is on her way now to stay with Sheila. I might as well confess that I hustled around and got up a surprise party for you this morning. Everyone's there--"

Fanny weakened. All she could find in the ice box for Sheila's lunch was a bowl of canned clam chowder, left from the day before. There was no ice, but the chowder smelled right enough.

About 4 o'clock, when Fanny got back to the cottage, she found it empty of all but Mrs. Collins, regretful to be the mouthpiece of bad news.

Sheila had suddenly become ill around 2 o'clock, she said. Fortunately Mrs. Collins had the presence of mind to telephone Mrs. Frost, who had taken Sheila home with her.

"She's awful sick," said Mrs. Collins. "I never seen a person turn so green."

Fanny ran the half mile to her mother-in-law's. Doctor Burnett was waiting.

"It's all right," said David tonelessly. He did not move, did not look at her. And added after a pause, "Poor Fanny! Poor girl."

Fanny touched then the depths of desolation. She felt that this time David had withdrawn himself so far from her that a little of him, a little of his faith and trust, never would come back.

PLANE SAVES LIFE

Cooperstown, N. Y.--Mrs. Essie Crossway, 40, owes her life to an airplane. After stepping on a nail recently, she was stricken with blood poison. Unable to obtain anti-toxin for his patient, her doctor chartered a plane. The plane flew to this city, landed in the golf course, obtained the anti-toxin and flew back in time to save the woman's life.

"More Dollars per acre..."

Here are Hard-Boiled Facts

which show the immense value of advertising in Wisconsin where people have money to buy

More dollars per acre come from Wisconsin than from any other state in the union. In 1929, Wisconsin led the nation with an impressive yield per acre in every important crop. She led in dairy products. In 1930, where the rest of the nation fell seven per cent behind the ten year average of the crop yield, Wisconsin was two per cent ahead!

Something for you gentlemen with advertising schedules to think about.

The truest indication of permanent, continuous farm prosperity lies in the ownership of farms. Wisconsin, surpassing any other state in the nation in diversified agriculture and high-yielding crops, leads the entire country in independent farm ownership.

Thousands upon thousands of these regularly buying farmers demand constant newspaper service. Largely, they receive it from the publications of the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper League whose 33 newspapers cover 70% of the entire population and include most of the farm district. Good roads and alert circulation departments have brought about an immense rural contact daily with printer's ink.

Wisconsin ranks thirteenth in population with three million citizens. Wisconsin ranks SEVENTH in manufacture and SIXTH in agriculture. Here is a unique condition, one which is matched nowhere else in the country! It means more dollars per person, more sales per reader of a Wisconsin Daily League Newspaper. In the balanced Wisconsin market, this condition is exclusive to no one income group.

Wisconsin's leadership is recognized. The state herself is a subject to investigation by other states. Representative groups made up from outstanding citizens of Mississippi, Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas and others have made special studies of this state. They were outspoken, frank in their admiration. They said:

"The records show that farms in Wisconsin... are producing double the gross income per acre of farms in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

"The prosperity of Wisconsin seems to be far beyond any other part of the country it has been my privilege to visit.

"... I am wondering if we can ever hope to equal what they have done.

"I do not think that anyone could drive over the State of Wisconsin and not be thoroughly sold on the stabilized condition of that state."

These are but a part of the endorsement which Wisconsin has received. Such expressions came from bankers, farm leaders, chamber of commerce representatives, county agents, newspapermen and others. Here are men loyal to their own states, yet cognizant of Wisconsin's leadership. They point out how necessary the Wisconsin

HEFLIN BATTLES TO OBTAIN RELIEF IN DROUGHT AREA

Senator Battles Hard Even if He Was Defeated in November Election

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — The Honorable J. Thomas Hefflin of Alabama, that famous senator who is now a lame duck because he attempted to rally his state against Al Smith and the Ford in 1928, is not going to let his constituents down simply because they dumped him back into private life at election time.

Instead of bellowing madly at the Catholic church or describing the iniquities of his political enemies, Tom has devoted himself in the Senate thus far to the business of seeing that the drought sufferers of Alabama and other stricken states get some real relief.

He has been plugging for the $60,000,000 drought relief appropriation which the Senate passed and which the administration House leaders have been trying to cut to $25,000,000 or $30,000,000. Tom, in the quiet idea that the government ought to lend money to feed people as well as farm animals.

"It doesn't make any difference to me whether they call it a dole or not," he says, referring to what Secretary of Agriculture Hyde called the food appropriation after admitting the worst drought in national history.

Seeks Funds for Hungry

Pointing to government subsidies to private shipbuilders, Hefflin guesses that if the government can lend money to individuals to set them up in business and enable them to make money, it can also lend money to American citizens who are hungry.

"These men and women in Alabama and other states of the Union are in the midst of distress, the like of which they never have known before," he declared. "Not only can they not support themselves, but their neighbors who are better off have suffered so acutely from farm products that they are not able to lend a helping hand. Obviously we can depend on community relief in time of distress, but not now."

"Cotton is selling for 10 cents a pound, $20 to $25 a bale below the cost of production, and other farm products are selling at low and unprofitable prices. The farmers are unable to pay the debts they owe or to take care of themselves, even outside the drought-stricken area."

"Provision of $60,000,000, in my opinion, is inadequate. The sum of $25,000,000 will not begin to relieve the distress and suffering of the people afflicted by drought. What sort of a policy are some of these people, seeking to lay down when they would supply a man with seed to plant in the ground and feed for stock and with fertilizer to put in the soil when they have nothing to eat, nothing upon which to live, nothing with which to support his family while he is making a crop. To my mind such a suggestion is utterly ridiculous."

"When a crash comes in Wall Street they call upon the banking facilities of the government and get the funds they need to tide them over the crisis. Shipbuilders can borrow government money to carry on their business. But patriotic men and women whose sons have been called upon to bear arms for defense of their government are not allowed a loan with which to buy food to live on during a period of unprecedented distress and suffering. You can supply them with seed, but they can't live to make the crop without they have food for themselves and their families."

"The points to mortgages have two horses, a two-horse farmer as we call him, has already mortgaged his horses, his wagon perhaps, his household effects. How can he live even if the man who holds the mortgage is willing for him to keep that property?"

Tom recalls that the government went to the rescue in the Salem fire, the San Francisco disaster and the last big Mississippi flood and says that if there is any attempt now to take care of certain "big interests of the hurt and injury of the poor people of the United States," there are going to be some interesting things heard from Tom Hefflin.

He must be sincere about all this, even though President Hoover says the people who want $60,000,000 for drought relief are playing politics with human misery.

Hefflin, a Democrat who supported Hoover in 1928, Hefflin might possibly hope for a soft job on some bipartisan commission. An insincere Tom who yearned primarily for a job would string along with the president instead of opposing him.

SPANISH PILOT WILD CELEBRITY IN NATIVE LAND

Francisco Still Holds Warm Spot in Hearts of People

Madrid — Major Ramon Franco, the black-haired Lindbergh of Spain, who broke prison a month ago in order to join a revolt against the Spanish government and who wound up by hopping a plane and sky-rocketing to safety in Portugal, has been an extremely troublesome celebrity for his native land.

It was in 1926 that Franco made himself Spain's popular idol by being the first man to fly the South Atlantic, and before the choppers provoked by that exploit had died away he had ruffled the feelings of his government in the first of a series of rows that were to grow more serious as time went on.

As a result, Franco has been jailed, ordered about and reprimanded at intervals, ever since. But he has never lost his hold on the sympathy of the Spanish populace—which is why his present enthusiasm for the revolt has been so discouraging to the government.

Francisco, originally, was just the younger brother of a famous man. Born in the town of Ferrol 34 years ago, he found, while his brother, Colonel Franco, a commander of the Spanish Foreign Legion in Morocco too, and as soon as his country began to develop military aviation seriously, he became a pilot.

Was Hero in Africa

For several years he was something of a celebrity in the army, even though the country at large had not heard of him. His face and hands made rough and red by the desert sun and winds, he was called "Jackal," and his daring exploits with his airplane won him fame.

He used to start out on patrol in the morning with a couple of sandwiches in his pocket, fly beyond the enemy's lines, and return at dusk. Time and again he did this, often being forced down behind the lines, but always escaping unhurt. He was fond of stunting; it is said that whenever the soldiers in Morocco saw a plane gyrating with unaccounted daring they at once guessed that Franco was his pilot.

In 1926 came a nation-wide fame. Franco projected a flight from Spain to South America, won government approval and made the trip—a long hop of more than 6,000 miles, broken by stops at the Canary and Cape Verde Islands and at the Island of Fernando de Noronha. He toured Rio, Montevideo and Buenos Aires winning great enthusiasm all over South America.

U. S. Tour Canceled

He planned to fly north and tour the United States, but the government intervened and peremptorily ordered him home. He said he would fly back, adding that if permission were refused he would never fly again. The government insisted that he return by steamer—and when the Argentine government put a cruiser at his disposal he consented, forgetting, his threat.

Associated Press Financial Editor
New York—(AP)—The post-holiday stock market was an anti-climatic and dreary affair today.

Prices crept lower under unusually light offerings. The losses in pivotal shares were mostly small, but a few issues broke into new low ground. The market was, indeed, an extreme contrast to the vigorous advance which followed the Christmas holiday a year ago.

Several of the merchandising issues were sold presumably on the theory that earnings from holiday trade would be disappointing, because of reduced profit margins. Macy declined more than 5 points, and Sears Roebuck 2, to new low levels. Woolworth, Best and Co., and Associated Dry Goods also moderately. Gillette dropped about 2 to a new minimum under 19, and Southern Pacific, Coca Cola, and Western Union declined as much. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Liggett and Myers, B. New York Central, North American and Paramount sagged a point or more. The list formed for a time in the morning, Eastern, making a temporary gain of 5 points.

A declining stock market in the last week of the year has been rare in stock market history. Selling to establish losses for income tax purposes has usually been completed by that time, and traders have been inclined to accumulate stocks in expectation of a January reinvestment demand. Furthermore, holding and investment companies have favored a firm market at the close of the year, to give a large market value their Dec. 31 statements.

Today's stock market appeared to suffer from neglect as much as anything. There was little in the business news to encourage speculation for the rise, and many traders who left town for the holiday planned to stay away until next Monday.

Low level, producing such widespread slowness that such indicators as the new year's activity, as are often apparent at this time, were lacking.

Credit rates were in the main stationary, but call money, officially at 2 per cent, was firm, reflecting the year-end and banking demand for funds.

APATHY MARKS TRADE
ON N. W. BOND MARKET

New York—(AP)—Resumption of business after the holiday found the bond market suffering from apathy. Price movement was extremely narrow, reflecting the dullness of trading, and the volume of business shrank to small proportions.

The stagnation was apparent in all sections of the list. Railroad obligations which have been very active were virtually stationary, and changes failed to reveal a trend. Utility issues showed a slight tendency to seek lower levels in a light turnover. Unimportant changes took place in the foreign section.

The policy of watchful waiting to which offering houses are adhering and the dullness that is synonymous with Christmas week combined to reduce the tone of the market during the week to the second smallest of the year. The week's volume of new issues amounted to $9,897,000, which supplants the week ending Dec. 13 as next to the year's lowest. Two years ago the total was $12,920,000 and the smallest of the year was the first week of 1930 when the floatations amounted to only $5,511,000.

As 1930 wanes there is much conjecture in investment circles as to what the new year holds for bonds. Inquiry indicated that new offerings in January will be scarce unless more definite signs of an upturn in fixed income securities than can now be seen on the horizon becomes apparent. Investment houses feel that while unquestionably the season is present for a strong bond market they are not inclined to expect very much until investors are cheered by definite evidence of improvement in business and industry.

HOLIDAY CONDITIONS
PREVAIL ON MARKET

Chicago—(AP)—Holiday conditions, apparently robbed the Chicago Stock Exchange dealings of the major part of their activity. The turnover at times was scarcely at a 50,000 share day. Buying orders just about balanced offerings, with the result that prices moved in an arrow range at approximately Wednesday's closing levels.

Borg Warner came in for more than his share of attention at sold at 193 before it succumbed to the prevailing dullness and dropped back to 194. Great Lakes Dredge advanced a point to 223 on a few sales. Middle West and Insull Utilities were steady at fair to previous closing prices.

BANK CLEARINGS
Chicago—(AP)—Bank clearings $75,800,000; balances $4,500,000. New York clearings $996,000,000; balances $318,000,000.

MART SWAMPED BY HEAVY SUPPLIES

42,000 Hogs Arrive as Shipments Accumulate Over Holiday

Chicago—(AP)—Accumulation of supplies over the holiday resulted in the marketing of 42,000 hogs today. This is the largest Friday offerings here in more than a year and put salesmen on their mettle to prevent precipitate price decline. Packers claimed 17,000 hogs on direct billing, but only 1,000 state hogs were carried over from the previous day.

Light lights and pigs, moving early at $2.25 to $2.50, were steady with Wednesday's average, while bids on lighter weight hogs languished lower.

Cattle receipts of 8,000 included some good heaves, but no strictly choice stock. Buyers combed the alleys apparently in search of high-grade heaves and gave preference to the lighter weights. While the market included some stuff loaded for arrival on Thursday, railroad service was slower than usual and 150 cars out of 670 expected were delayed in arriving at the yards.

Early trains of live muttons carried less than 1,000 head of lambs direct to one of the killing plants; others were expected later. Offerings of 13,000 were ample for trade needs and none of the buyers took hold early, hoping for lower prices in the late market.

WHEAT TOUCHES LOWEST MARK IN OVER 30 YEARS

BY JOHN P. BOUGHTON
Chicago—(AP)—New low prices today for July delivery of wheat here outdid any bottom records since 1896. Much of the selling which carried July wheat down was apparently for European account, and there was selling also on the part of "spread" traders who were simultaneously buying at Winnipeg. All deliveries of corn broke the season's low price record.

With the Liverpool wheat market closed until Monday and with holiday conditions prevailing elsewhere the wheat trade at Chicago today showed much less liveliness than usual, and values tended to fall of their own weight. The fact that May wheat was practically 13 cents over May corn was construed in some quarters as indicating that from the fact that the weather was small. Traders friendly to higher prices for wheat contended, however, that wheat values are so low that there is no logic in pressing the selling side of the market.

In the corn market considerable speculative selling developed and the resulting fall in prices forced into execution some standing orders which holders had given to stop losses at various set limits. Emphasizing the fact that the weather was suspicious for promoting shipment of corn from rural sources was the circumstance that primary arrivals of corn today totaled 1,191,000 bushels against only 814,000 bushels a year ago. The aggregate today, though, was somewhat smaller than at this time last week. Oats fell with corn and wheat.

Provisions were without significant change.

17 COUNTIES IN STATE REGISTER FARM INCREASE

11,000 Less in Wisconsin on April 1 Than in 1925, Expert Reports

Madison—(AP)—Only 17 of Wisconsin's 71 counties registered an increase in the number of farms in the past decade, Walter Ebling, statistician for the U. S. and Wisconsin departments of agriculture, announced here today.

According to preliminary figures of the federal census bureau, Wisconsin had 152,028 farms on April 1 or 11,127 less than in 1925 and 7,287 less than in 1920.

"Decreases in the number of farms are most noticeable in the northeast, southeast, northern, central and northwestern sections," Mr. Ebling said. "The encroachment of cities and suburbs on farm lands has played an important part in the lowered number in sections adjacent to large population centers."

"Absorption of small units into the operations of larger farms may have some effect on the reduction in the number of farms although it is still problematical as to how much effect this has had as well as to the effect of increase in size of farms, if any, during the period since 1925. In some areas conditions adverse to agricultural development have contributed to the lower number of farms."

The percentage of increase in the number of farms was greatest in Iron county which had 207 more farms this year than in 1920. The growth represented an increase of 54.1 per cent. In Milwaukee county the growth of urbanism, represented by the city of Milwaukee, has spelled doom for farms. The number of farms was cut 31.5 per cent during the last decade.

The north district, composed of Ashland, Clark, Iron, Lincoln, Marathon, Oneida, Price, Taylor and Vilas counties, showed the greatest development. This year there were 939 more farms in the district than in 1920, representing an increase of 4.3 per cent. The central district, comprising Adams, Green Lake, Juneau, Marquette, Portage, Waupaca, Waushara and Wood counties, suffered a loss of 1,920 farms in the past decade, representing a decrease of 8.8 per cent.

The only counties to gain farms during the period 1920 to 1930 are Bayfield, Chippewa, Douglas, Polk, Rusk, Sawyer, Iron, Lincoln, Marathon, Oneida, Price, Taylor, Vilas, Florence, LaCrosse, Grant and Green.

Hats Just Perch, Hold On-- They're Moving Up In Back

BY DIANA MERWIN

Paris—(AP)—Hats are moving off the back of the neck as well as off the forehead.

The upward movement in millinery is gaining such momentum that it threatens to upset present lines and bring about a radical change next season in the shape of hatted heads.

Women's new grown hair is responsible according to milliners. The hat makers have wrestled desperately for several seasons with womankind's vague desire to cut her hair and have it too.

Most of them admit their delight in the definite tendency to let a roll of hair appear beneath the edge of the hat in back.

The hair should be in the shape of soft curls or a continuous roll not much larger than a lead pencil. Paris calls this coiffure the sausage roll.

The back-lift and off-the-brow tendencies racially diminish hat sizes. Among the thiest of all are little tricornes and berets made of suede or other dull fabric. They ride the crown of the head about a softened back hairline and carefully cultivate waves, permanent or natural, in front.

The waves come in front, usually flat and shining, divided at a center part. Hats are worn as far back as four inches in order to display the cherished waves.

Frequently a brooch of real jewels, preferably diamonds, is posed at the edge of the hat, resting chiefly in the hair.
